RUMOR FAVORS RETURN OF CAROL

ROUMANIA SPLIT BY NUMEROUS REPORTS REGARDING PRINCE

Queen Marie Arrives In France—King Reported Better

ON THE HUNGARIAN-ROUMANIAN FRONTIER, Nov. 30.—Roumania today is a land where Dame Rumor parades openly as a prince's favorite, with little or no authentic information to say her nay.

Arriving on the frontier, this correspondent found a feverish excitement among all Roumanians, thirsting for news from the capital as well as the greatest interest in information coming from the outside world.

A dozen different rumors and reports were abroad. Conspicuous among these were those that King Ferdinand had been dead since last Saturday night but that the news is being suppressed; also that the Roumanian minister of war, M. Mircescu, is expected to leave Roumania tomorrow "for a trip abroad." His trip is believed to have a double motive: first, to give Premier Averescu an opportunity to take charge of the Roumanian army as temporary minister of war, to prepare against a possible forthcoming revolution; and second, to permit M. Mircescu to personally take charge of the Roumanian intelligence service abroad as a guaranty that former Crown Prince Carol will not be able to return to Roumania as it is suspected he intends to do—perhaps in the returning retinue of Queen Marie, who arrives in Paris today.

The Roumanian newspapers today contained no news concerning King Ferdinand's condition, except for the favorable communiques issued by the government and which the majority of the populace believes to be untrue.

The government has informed the editors and proprietors of newspapers that confiscation will immediately follow the publication of any item concerning the king's health or the question of succession to the throne, other than the news contained in the official bulletins.

Premier Averescu is reported to be trying to get the Peasants party leaders to forsake their support of Prince Carol's cause and to accept the government's solution of the question of succession to the throne.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The Roumanian minister to London today informed the International News Service that he had "received a message from Bucharest last night which stated that King Ferdinand is making satisfactory progress."

King Ferdinand is transacting business daily and has made engagements for several days hence, according to advices to the foreign office today.

CHEROBURG, Nov. 30.—Delayed four hours by heavy seas, which were running so high as to make the disembarkation of passengers difficult, Queen Marie and her suite landed here at three o'clock from the S. S. Berengaria.

One of the first to greet Queen Marie was General Angelesco, of the Roumanian army, who came to urge her to speed her return to her native land, although he estimated the condition of King Ferdinand was not as serious as reported.

JAIL SUSPECT ON CHARGE OF MURDER

GEORGETOWN, O., Nov. 30.—Charles Carrier, 49, was being held in the county jail here today, charged with the murder of Walter Badgely, 77, retired farmer of Sardinia, near here.

Sheriff J. H. McCulloch declared that evidence showing that the murdered man resented the attention Carrier was giving a young woman, together with other circumstances revealed last night, prompted him to arrest Carrier.

The slaying of Badgely occurred Saturday.

Carrier refused to talk about the charges.

ARREST MAN AFTER FINDING TORSO

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Francisco Tripla was arrested today on a homicide charge after police claimed he threw a bag containing the arms and legs of a woman from the India wharf into the river at the foot of Hamilton St.

STRAND OF ROPE MADE IN XENIA MAY HELP SOLVE MURDER OF MAN FOUND IN RIVER ON NOVEMBER 7

Theory that the strand of rope tied to a stone with which the unidentified body of a red-haired man found in the Scioto River near Columbus November 7 was weighed down, is a product of the Hoover and Allison Co., Xenia, has been adopted by authorities investigating the mysterious death.

The strand of rope is considered unusual, having a blue thread running through it. Investigators, it is said, have definitely established the fact the rope is of the famous "Blue Heart" variety for which the Xenia manufacturing concern is noted.

Efforts are now being made by detectives assigned to the case to learn the names of Columbus distributors of the product with the hope that more information which may lead to solution of the murder can be obtained.

Officials of the company in Xenia admit the possibility their product may be a clew in the case but have not been in communication with Columbus detectives. The company declines to commit itself definitely to the assertion the rope is of the "Blue Heart" make without actually seeing the strand, pointing out the product of at least one other company is similarly identified by a blue thread, which is, however, placed in the rope in a different manner.

It was originally believed the body is that of Ralph Pope, Springfield, on the testimony of Mrs. Annie Riggs, Springfield who has stated positively she is the mother of the murdered man, but detectives are skeptical.

If it is proven conclusively the body is that of another man, it will be exhumed from Miamisburg Cemetery. In the event it is identified as that of Pope from service prints, investigators will continue their efforts to apprehend the murderer along other lines.

REVIVAL OF RELIEF QUESTION ASSURED BY NEW FARM PLAN

New McNary-Haugen
Measure To Face
Congress Soon

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—A revival of the farm relief controversy at the coming session of congress was assured today with the drafting of a new McNary-Haugen bill for the stabilization of American agriculture through the creation of a government corporation to export surplus farm products.

Defeated at the last session, after a bitter fight, the new measure will face a hard road to enactment. It will retain the two principal provisions—which would place an equalization fee upon exported products and require the government to finance it at the outset—that caused its rejection by congress last spring.

Its enactment will depend entirely upon the support given it by Southern senators and representatives, following the recent upheaval in the cotton industry.

Most of the provisions of the old bill were re-written into the new document. It will authorize a $250,000,000 appropriation to be used as a revolving fund by the proposed corporation. This fund would be repaid the government through the levying of an equalization fee upon the products benefited. Its export features will apply to cotton, wheat, corn, swine and rice.

The inclusion of rice among the products to be exported was a departure from the old bill as the dropping of live-stock products. The latter, however, may be restored if live-stock dealers insist upon it.

There were other changes in the administrative features of the bill, the chief one being to place all control of the proposed corporation in the hands of a board of twelve members. This board would be appointed by the president, one member from each of the federal farm land bank districts. The board would elect its own chairman, who would be considered literally the president of the export corporation.

Borrowing On Bonus
Certificates Will Boost

By FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE
Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1926

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Veterans of the World war will have at their disposal in 1927, in the shape of available bank loans on their bonus certificates, the sum of $263,540,000. Loans may be made on and after January 1. Financial authorities and business leaders throughout the country expect enough ex-service men to take advantage of their privileges to result in a marked effect upon trade of all kinds.

If the veterans borrow on their "adjusted compensations" certificates up to anything like the total amount at their disposal, it would put in circulation about as much ready money as President Coolidge plans to release to taxpayers through credits or refunds. A conservative estimate fixes $200,000,000 as the sum on which our World War fighting men are likely to lay legitimate hands.

The country at large has little conception of the magnitude of the

ELECTION OF GOULD ENABLES PARTY TO ORGANIZE SENATE

Will Not Help Much
However In Control
Of That Body

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Election of Arthur B. Gould as Republican senator from Maine means that the Republican party will be able to organize the senate of the seventieth congress by the narrow margin of a single vote.

Actually, however, the Republican victory in Maine means very little, if anything, insofar as actual or working control of the next senate is concerned.

The line-up stands today:

Republicans—48. Democrats—47. Farmer-Labor—1.

Actual control, if any, rests more with the Democrats than with the Republicans, despite the figures, for included in the Republican total of forty-eight are fully a dozen senators who as often vote with the Democrats as against them. There are, perhaps, half a dozen who vote often against the administration that with it. This is particularly true on any legislation that by any stretch of imagination may be termed "progressive."

La Follette and Blaine, in Wisconsin; Frazier and Nye, in North Dakota; Norris and Howell, in Nebraska; Johnson, in California; Norbeck and McMaster, in South Dakota; Borah, in Idaho; Couzens, in Michigan—they are impervious and contemptuous of party discipline and the party whip. They vote with the Republicans on organization matters but on legislation they are independent.

DONAHEY WILL ASK SENATE APPROVAL

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 30.—Governor Vic Donahey, it became known today, is expected to ask the Ohio senate this winter to confirm his appointment of either James C. Dugan, Kenton; Robert Ackerman, Gallion; or Attorney Grover C. Maxwell, Columbus, as a member of the state utilities commission representing Ohio railroad employees.

Dugan, now acting secretary of the commission, was in charge of the commission's railroad department for years. Ackerman was legislative agent for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, Maxwell, a former railroad employee, formerly was secretary of the commission.

WILL NOT APPEAR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—President Coolidge will not deliver in person his annual message to congress next week, the White House spokesman declared today. The message will be read by clerks, probably on next Tuesday.

WILL ARREST BANK OFFICIAL AS PRINCIPAL IN HUGE RUM PLOT

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Lewis H. Rothchild, vice president of the Chelsea Exchange Bank, of New York and two of his associates will be placed under arrest today as the prime figures in a gigantic plot to smuggle liquor into the United States.

Assistant United States Attorney Hubert C. Thompson, Deputy Surveyor Thomas P. Flanagan and Customs Agent Owen P. McKenna arrived here from Boston early today with warrants for Rothchild and Harold Smythe, secretary to Rothchild, and James V. Boice, assistant cashier of the Chelsea bank.

Thompson said he would demand immediate extradition of the three to Boston to stand trial with thirty-eight others indicted by the government in the alleged liquor conspiracy.

CHASE SAYS FALL ATTEMPTED TO CLEAR DEBT WITH ANOTHER LOAN

Day And Night Sessions Ordered To Speed Up Conspiracy Case—Will Take Testimony Every Evening

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Albert B. Fall, ex-secretary of the interior, endeavored unsuccessfully to discharge his $100,000 obligation to E. L. Doheny before the senate investigating committee, it was testified today by Fall's son-in-law, C. C. Chase.

Chase, the first witness called today in the trial of his father-in-law and Doheny for alleged conspiracy to defraud the government in oil leases, testified that, in November of 1923, Fall endeavored to obtain a loan of $100,000 from Price McKimney, of Cleveland, but without success.

Beginning today, the government's criminal drama will play both night and day sessions. By order of the court, testimony will be taken nightly from eight to ten, in addition to the day hearings.

With the trial thus speeded up, out of consideration for the locked-up jury, the government will dispose of the financial end of the case and begin the work of trying to convince the court that the $100,000 naval oil leases accorded Doheny were tainted with fraud.

Followers of the trial are almost unanimous in agreeing that the government scored a smashing victory yesterday when it succeeded in placing Doheny's testimony before a senate committee in 1923-24 and a letter written by Fall to that committee before the jury. This testimony and letter, absolutely conflicting, uncovered Doheny as the lender of the $100,000 and showed that Fall had sought to conceal the fact.

HUGHES AND BAKER ARE SUGGESTED AS
1928 CANDIDATES

New England Offers
Former Candidate
And Ohioan

By FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE
Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1926

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—From New England, heretofore the suggestion might seem, comes the proposal that Charles E. Hughes be nominated for president by the Republicans two years hence.

From the same quarter issues the thought that the Democrats ought to put up an equally high grade candidate in the person of Newton D. Baker. The patentee of the bi-partisan brain-wave justifies it on the ground that "whoever won, the victory would be greeted by millions of earnest men and women in both parties alike with gratitude and joy."

There are certain imponderabilia which enshroud the Hughes-Baker idea with difficulties. The former Secretary of State avows, avers and affirms with recurring vigor and vehemence that he is out of politics and in law for keeps. The former secretary of war is handicapped by the fact that Ohio already has two official favorite sons—Gov. Donahey and former Senator Pomerehne.

It has been said that if Newton Baker "had six more inches of height" he would be an irresistible presidential candidate. What he lacks in stature he more than makes up for in brain.

PREJUDICE CHARGE AGAINST JURY WILL BE BASIS OF MOTION

Citizen Alleges Jurors
Freely Discuss Hall-
Mills Case

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 30.—Sensational charges that the Hall-Mills murder trial jury already has made up its mind; that it stands nine for acquittal and three for conviction; and that it has talked freely of its prejudice against the state's case, today caused a furor in Somerville and reports were circulated that Prosecutor Alexander Simpson plans to demand a mistrial. The charges were made by Gilbert Van Doren, owner of the Colonial hotel, where the jury is quartered.

Van Doren, the third largest taxpayer in Somerset County, who has lived here for fifty-six years, wrote a letter containing these charges to Judge Frank L. Cleary, sitting in the case with Justice Charles W. Parker.

Van Doren, seventy-eight years old, and independently wealthy, today admitted it was he who wrote to Judge Cleary, complaining of the actions of the jury. He lives at the hotel.

He was interviewed this morning in his "office" and room on the second floor of the hotel. He is a gray-haired, gray-mustached little man, ruddy-faced and wrinkled.

"I'm sorry I'm dragged into this," he said, "but, now that I'm in it, I'm not going to back down. I thought I could give the information to Judge Cleary without my name getting in the newspapers."

"But what I said in the letter about the jury is right. I've been staying here at the hotel all along and could see and hear what was going on."

"Three of the jurors are for conviction. I can name them. The other nine are for acquittal."

He said the jurors talked the case over loudly and freely at the hotel; that they made no secret of their prejudice against the state's case even before Mrs. Jane Gibson appeared as a witness; that, after she appeared, he repeatedly heard her referred to as "liar"; that he heard the jurors make such statements as, "Simpson and his Hudson County officers have come to Somerset County to show us how to run things but they won't get away with it."

Van Doren declared he wrote to Judge Cleary because he thought it was his duty to do so as a citizen who did not want a stain cast on the name of Somerset County; that he "wouldn't take the stand for $10,000" but that he will take the stand and tell what he knows if he is requested to do so.

"Why, you couldn't help hearing what the jury was saying around this hotel," Van Doren said. "They leave their doors wide open. There are twenty to twenty-five roomers stopping here all the time."

"I've talked and jollied with the jurors. They have had no compunction in talking with me. Why, I know eleven of the twelve jurors."

"I was joking with one of them the other day. I said: 'Well, soon you'll be locked up for three or four days and you'll have to pay for our own convenience.' The juror laughed and replied: 'Don't kid yourself; we won't be in here twenty minutes.'"

"If Simpson subpoenas me, I'll go and testify," he said. "And, if he does, I'll give him the name of one of the constables in charge of the jury who sits in here and talks about the case right along."

It is reported that the juror Simpson plans a move for a mistrial either today or tomorrow if he makes such a motion, he will allege improprieties in connection with the conduct of the jury.

Simpson said today that, for several days, detectives for the prosecution have been obtaining affidavits tending to show that several members of the jury have not been paying proper attention to the evidence and that one of the jurors fell asleep during the testimony of Mrs. Jane Gibson.

It is understood Simpson plans to present the affidavits to the court in support of a motion for a mistrial.

Attorneys for the defense indicated their surprise at the turn of developments. Timothy N. Pfeiffer, of defense counsel, said that, in the event of a mistrial, the defense would plead, at the opening of a new trial, that their clients "have been placed in former jeopardy" and move that the new trial be dismissed.

When Simpson came into the court room this morning, he would not discuss his plans regarding a motion for a mistrial. It was learned, however, that his assistants are actively seeking evidence regarding the jury and that one matter being investigated is a report that a Somerville minister called one of the jurors aside the other day and talked to him for five minutes.

KINGS OF NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE EXPLAINED IN STORY

One of World's Greatest Markets Is Least Understood—Expert Tells About Wall St., In Article About High Finance

By FRED R. RIPLEY
Special Financial Writer of EFS and The Daily Gazette

Recent developments in Wall Street, notably in connection with General Motors, have served to draw the attention of the newspaper readers to the New York Stock exchange, which is at the same time one of the world's greatest markets and one of the least understood institutions. To the average person it is a thing of mystery wherein financial giants plot and plan ways in which they may deplete the other fellow's bank roll.

It has its faults, like all human institutions, but the stock exchange is one of the most constructive factors in the world today, for it is the thing which makes possible those great corporations which unified industry, cheapened costs, and put within the reach of almost everyone things that not many years ago were considered luxuries.

WHY IT'S NECESSARY

There are few persons rich enough to finance, individually, a really great corporation. The combining of the money and interests of a great number of people is at its highest stage in our modern corporation.

One is apt to overlook the advantages of this system. Perhaps one of the best examples is the modern railroad. Traveling from New York to Chicago one may use one of three or four different routes. One train takes you all the way. There are no changes to make.

But imagine that same trip if the railroads were individually owned and a person had to travel on lines owned by perhaps a dozen or fifteen individuals in making this same trip. For one man could scarcely own a trunk line from New York to Chicago. He would have to be content with owning merely a section of it. The nation would be more or less a network of short railroads that competed with each other and were highly inefficient as judged by our modern standards.

The stock exchange idea is really the thing which has made the trunk railroad and other large corporations possible. The big corporation is the result of a number of people pooling their money and interests.

ALWAYS IMMEDIATELY USEFUL

Before people will invest their money they must generally be shown two things. First, a chance for fair or better profit, and secondly, the opportunity of getting their money back if they are dissatisfied for any reason.

Practically all of our big and small corporations have demonstrated their ability to earn money. Most of the investors who have money in these companies are satisfied on this score. And if they are not, there is always the stock exchange.

The shares of virtually all large American corporations, and some foreign ones, are listed on some exchange in this country. The same is true of the bonded indebtedness of the corporations. One of the best examples of the ease with which a modern corporation can finance itself is the plan now being put through by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey. To understand the plan it must be known that part of the company's capitalization consists of approximately 2,000,000 shares of preferred stock. On these shares, which have a par value of $100 each, the company each year must pay seven per cent in dividends. This amounts to almost $14,000,000 annually which the company must pay out of its earnings.

The new plan calls for the raising of sufficient capital to buy back this stock from stockholders at $115 per share. The purchase money will be raised through the sale of company bonds. The interest which the company will have to pay on the bonds is decidedly lower than seven per cent, for the bonds will be considered a safer investment than stock. The degree of safety attached to a stock or bond largely determines the amount of return guaranteed on it.

Investors are convinced that if the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey puts out a bond issue such as this mentioned above, its financial condition is sufficiently strong to warrant it. Otherwise the issue would not be permitted.

The investor, in addition to knowing that the bond bears interest, also knows that he will be able to find a ready market for any bonds he may purchase in the event that he desires to put his money to work in the capitalization of another concern or to use the money for any other purpose.

In other words, the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey will have no trouble in disposing of its bonds for the investment world feels assured that there will always be a ready market for them, for there is the stock exchange.

Few individuals would buy securities of any kind if they knew that the money would have to remain tied up until that security was redeemed by the company sponsoring it.

THE BACKBONE OF IT ALL

And if only a few people invested their money, our modern corporation, with few exceptions, would be an impossibility, for the big corporation could not be financed by the money of one or two individuals.

Securities are like real estate. Both are purchased so that money may be put to work and with the realization that whenever the

DRINK WATER TO HELP WASH OUT KIDNEY POISON

IF YOUR BACK HURTS OR YOUR BLADDER BOTHERS YOU, BEGIN TAKING SALTS

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In twenty-four hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. —Adv.

TEACHING OF SEX HYGIENE UNDER FIRE

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 30—The faculty of East High School has split over the question of teaching sex hygiene and several stormy sessions are imminent.

The controversy broke out due to the custom of Prof. Robert Goldbach in taking a mixed class of adolescents to Western Reserve University one day each week where they were shown exhibits and given lectures about social diseases.

Several teachers of the school reported the matter to Principal Daniel Lothman who in turn referred it to Assistant Superintendent of Schools, Charles H. Lake. The latter has told Lothman to settle the dispute.

Then Lothman decided to put the question up to the parents of students. So he wrote them outlining the scientific matters which Goldbach had been teaching. So far 80 per cent of the parents have approved of Goldbach's action. Lothman is expected to announce soon whether he will permit a continuance of the studies. "The high school age is the dangerous age," declared Prof. Goldbach. "To instruct high school students in sex matters in a dignified and scientific manner is progressive education. Even if not approved now it will be eventually."

Fletcher's CASTORIA

Why Castoria?

Years ago Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups were the remedies in common use for Infants and Children; Castor Oil so nauseating as to be almost impossible and the others all containing Opium in one form or another, but so disguised as to make them pleasant to the taste, yet really to stupefy the child and give the appearance of relief from pain.

It required years of research to find a purely vegetable combination that would take the place of these disagreeable, unpleasant and vicious remedies that from habit had become almost universal. This was the inception of, and the reason for, the introduction of Fletcher's Castoria, and for over 30 years it has proven its worth, received the praise of Physicians everywhere and become a household word among mothers.

A remedy ESPECIALLY prepared for Infants and Children and no mother would think of giving to her baby a remedy that she would use for herself, without consulting a physician.

To avoid imitations always look for the signature of Dr. J. C. Fletcher. Proven directions on each package. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

COMPLETE SURPRISE ARRANGED BY FRIENDS

Friday evening, a group of neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Miller, south of Xenia, and completely surprised them. After the merriment incident to the surprise was over, the guests prepared oysters, which they had brought together with pickles, celery, ham sandwiches and hot coffee composed the menu. Guessing contests and games combined with a social time, was the evening's entertainment. The guest list for the affair included: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Woods, Mr. and Mrs. Dan LeValley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Babb, Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Middleton, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Devoe, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mason, Miss Nora Linkhart, Miss Reva Devoe, Miss Mary Middleton, Mr. Lynn Woods, Mr. Frank Miller and Mrs. Albert Griswold, Dayton.

ANNUAL COMMERCIAL BANK BANQUET HELD

Annual banquet given by the Commercial and Savings Bank for the directors and employees, was held at the Elks' Club Monday evening and was one of the most pleasurable affairs in the history of the institution. Dinner was served at 6 o'clock by Jacob Kay and his staff and consisted of four courses. The entire group was seated at one table, centered with a huge basket of pom pom chrysanthemums. Attorney W. L. Miller, director, presided as toastmaster and called on the various other officials and employees. Mr. A. E. Faulkner, cashier, responded with a short talk, stressing the enjoyable co-operation between officials and employees. Mr. H. H. Conklin, president, gave a short talk and Mr. J. A. Bales, assistant cashier, also responded. Mr. George Durbaugh represented the group of employees in a brief talk. After the informal program of talks, the party adjourned.

SMITH ADVERTISING COMPANY TO EXPAND PLANT FACILITIES

Details of an expansion program resulting from a steady increase of business were made known Tuesday by Frank L. Smith and Berch Smith, co-owners of the Smith Advertising Co., 132-134 E. Main St., with the acquisition of property adjoining the concern, purchased from Attorney Marcus Shoup.

The deal consummated Saturday gives the company title to a residence and lot with a frontage of fifty feet and depth of 165 feet. New owners plan to erect a two-story building on the lot connecting with the main plant by archways.

Increased business has resulted in crowded working conditions at the present plant, it is pointed out. In the proposed new building will be placed additional special machinery and equipment now under construction. The press room and part of the main offices may also be transferred to the new structure.

The addition will give the company a 100-foot frontage on E. Main St., extending 165 feet deep. A warehouse may also be eventually constructed in the rear of the property for storage purposes. The company now employs about thirty-five people and with additional facilities hopes to increase its force of employees to between fifty and sixty.

At present the building now in use is considered of inadequate size. The basement is being used for store room, the first floor for the bindery and press room and the second story given over to a portion of the bindery and composing room, with stock rooms in the rear.

The company was organized fourteen years ago by the present owners and has shown a steady advertising novelties which appear in every state in the United States and many foreign countries.

All machinery used is designed according to special plans enabling the concern to fill practically all applications. The company recently added printed yard sticks to its list of products and ships a car load a month.

SACRIFICE DINNER NOT ESSENTIAL FOR GOLDEN RULE PLANS

It is not entirely essential to serve an orphan or "refugee meal" to carry out the spirit of Golden Rule Sunday, December 5, according to the statement of members of A. C. Turrell W. C. T. U. sponsoring the cause in Xenia.

Members of A. C. Turrell Union suggest that the vital purpose of the day is to obtain funds for the support of 35,000 children the wards of Near East Relief in Greece, Armenia, Palestine and Syria. A touch of sentiment is added to the day by serving a sacrificial meal, the chairman observes, but a generous donation agreed on after the usual Sunday dinner will bring the same comfort and satisfaction to the children. "A charity which extends a hand of help over the sea to aid an alien people is a fitting expression of the world meaning of the Golden Rule and must do much to extend that international goodwill on which the peace of the world depends," says an appeal from the committee.

Envelopes for donations for the Near East Relief will be placed in Xenia churches next Sunday and Xenia pastors have consented to give talks in local schools, next Thursday, urging observance of "Golden Rule Sunday." The Rev. W. H. Telford, First Presbyterian Church, will talk at Central High School Thursday at 2:45 p. m., and later at the Opportunity School; the Rev. W. N. Shank at Orient Hill, at 2:15; the Rev. J. P. Lytle, at Spring Hill, 2:15 p. m.; the Rev. H. B. McElree, McKinley, 2:45; the Rev. A. M. Hutchison and the Rev. Mr. Cromwell, East High, 10:30.

The recent earthquake disasters in Armenia, making thousands of little children shelterless and destroying hundreds of lives, places an additional burden on the shoulders of Near East Relief, it is said.

It is estimated that nearly 5,000,000 people, including President Coolidge and many other rulers, will participate in the observance of Golden Rule Sunday. It is understood a sacrificial dinner will be served at the White House.

"It must be all of twenty years ago that mother first gave me Syrup Pepsin"

For those Fevers, Colds and Bowel Troubles of Childhood

How time flies. My good mother has gone to her rest, but I have faithfully relied upon her judgment and have given Syrup Pepsin to my two children since they were born. It is certainly a noble medicine and never fails of its purpose. I like to recommend it." (Name and address will be sent upon request.)

And in the Evening of Life

When age comes creeping on, with bowels relaxed, muscles weak, digestion poor and blood thinned, then is when constipation does its evil work in a night. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is so palatable, sets so well in the stomach, works so easily, so gently, so kindly with old folks as to accomplish its purpose without gripe, pain or other distress. For biliousness, sour stomach, coated tongue, headache, fevers, colds and constipation from infancy to old age Syrup Pepsin is recommended everywhere and sold by all druggists.

BARN AND CONTENTS DESTROYED BY FIRE AT NEW JASPER TUESDAY

A large barn on the farm of Russell Spahr, east of New Jasper, and its contents, including a large quantity of hay, was entirely destroyed by fire Tuesday morning. The flames were discovered by Mr. Spahr at an early hour, but efforts of neighbors to check the blaze proved unsuccessful.

The barn was practically new, being built only two or three years ago. Besides the several tons of hay, several farm implements in the barn were also destroyed.

Cause is not known. The barn was wired but whether or not the electricity caused the fire, has not been determined.

Other buildings near the barn were damaged by the blaze and the volunteer fire fighters confined their efforts to these buildings to save further loss. The Spahr residence is only a short distance from the barn but was only slightly damaged by the heat.

Mr. Spahr had his barn and contents partially covered by insurance.

Presenting a program full of all varieties of entertaining features, Emory Parnell, the so-called "one-man band," delighted a Xenia Lyceum course audience at Central High Monday night with fascinating character make-ups and music.

As a novelty attraction this entertainer may well rank at the head of the list for he easily transforms himself into his various characters by the use of wigs, grease paint and costumes—all applied within full view of his audience.

The musical part of the entertainment was captivating. He plays an accordion and confines himself to classical and old-time selections. In fact he dislikes jazz music, he declared. Music he said strikes a human being at about the solar plexus, the jazz type going to the feet and the better class to the brain. Eighty per cent of the people, however, favor jazz strains of music, he asserted. He uses the accordion also as an accompaniment to his vocal solos and at the same time plays the drums with his feet.

During his character make-ups, he tells appropriate stories about the kind of person he is delineating and these bits of humor help to make the impersonations all the more interesting.

The fourth number of the course is not scheduled until January 27, 1927 when Arthur Walwyn Evans, the distinguished Welsh orator, appears here.

Will hear claim of Mellett widow

WILL HEAR CLAIM OF MELLETT WIDOW

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 30.—The state industrial commission this afternoon is to conduct a hearing relative to the claim filed on behalf of the widow of the late Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton News, who was murdered July 15, last.

Representing Mrs. Mellett, Judge H. E. Pontius, Canton, is asking the commission to award her $6,500, the maximum amount allowed under the Ohio workmen's compensation act. The award is asked on the ground that Mellett's death occurred during the regular course of his employment.

H. E. EAVEY SPEAKS IN WILMINGTON

H. E. Eavey, Xenia, delivered a sermon on "Christianity in Business," at Wilmington Friends Church, Sunday evening.

Mr. Eavey recited what he has found to be the incalculable advantage of engaging in what he terms "Christian business." He distributed evangelistic tracts through the congregation, containing Scriptural quotations and parables. He found these tracts to be of great assistance in the lay evangelistic work he has elected to undertake, Mr. Eavey says.

Ohio Wesleyan Mentor Will Address Dinner Here

COACH GAUTHIER TO TALK AT DINNER FOR CENTRAL GRIDDERS

Squad To Be Honored By Kiwanis And Rotary Clubs

Honoring the Central High School gridiron squad for its achievements during the past campaign, the Xenia Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs will be joint hosts to the players at a football party at Elks' Club Tuesday night at 6 o'clock.

George Gauthier, head coach at Ohio Wesleyan University, will be the principal speaker of the evening, assuring the fact the squad will be told much about football it already knows and equally as much that it has yet to learn.

Gauthier has been unusually successful as a coach at Wesleyan. He has had five years there during which time he has produced five championship teams. Three of these were Ohio Conference championships and the two others have been Buckeye Athletic Association championships.

He is a graduate of Michigan State College and was an honor student there. He played with the Michigan Aggies and was a star quarterback in 1913 when the Aggies defeated Michigan and Wisconsin in the same year. In 1918 he coached the Aggies when they defeated Notre Dame.

Coach Victor Kolb, of Central High School, played under Gauthier on the Wesleyan team for several years and the benefit of his knowledge has been passed on to Xenia eleven.

The banquet Tuesday night will be the fourth tendered the squad and the team is dieting earnestly for the coming struggle.

OSBORN ANXIOUS TO PLAY XENIA ELEVEN

Osborn Merchants football eleven formerly known under the familiar name of the Osborn Indians, is formally challenging the Xenia Tiltons "Thirty-threes" to a post-season game for the Greene County gridiron football championship for 1926.

The challenge is made on behalf of the team by Gib Campbell, manager of the Merchants.

Osborn is anxious to arrange the contest at either Xenia or on the home field under any terms and while no announcement has been forthcoming from the Tiltons it is thought altogether likely the contest may be arranged for next Sunday afternoon as both aggregations have open dates.

NEW AUTO REPORTED STOLEN IN XENIA

Theft of a Chrysler coach, 1926 model, owned by Ankeny and Weaver auto dealers, W. Market St., from its parking place in front of the McKinley grade school building Saturday, was reported to police. The car had been parked at that point by Donald Weaver, member of the firm.

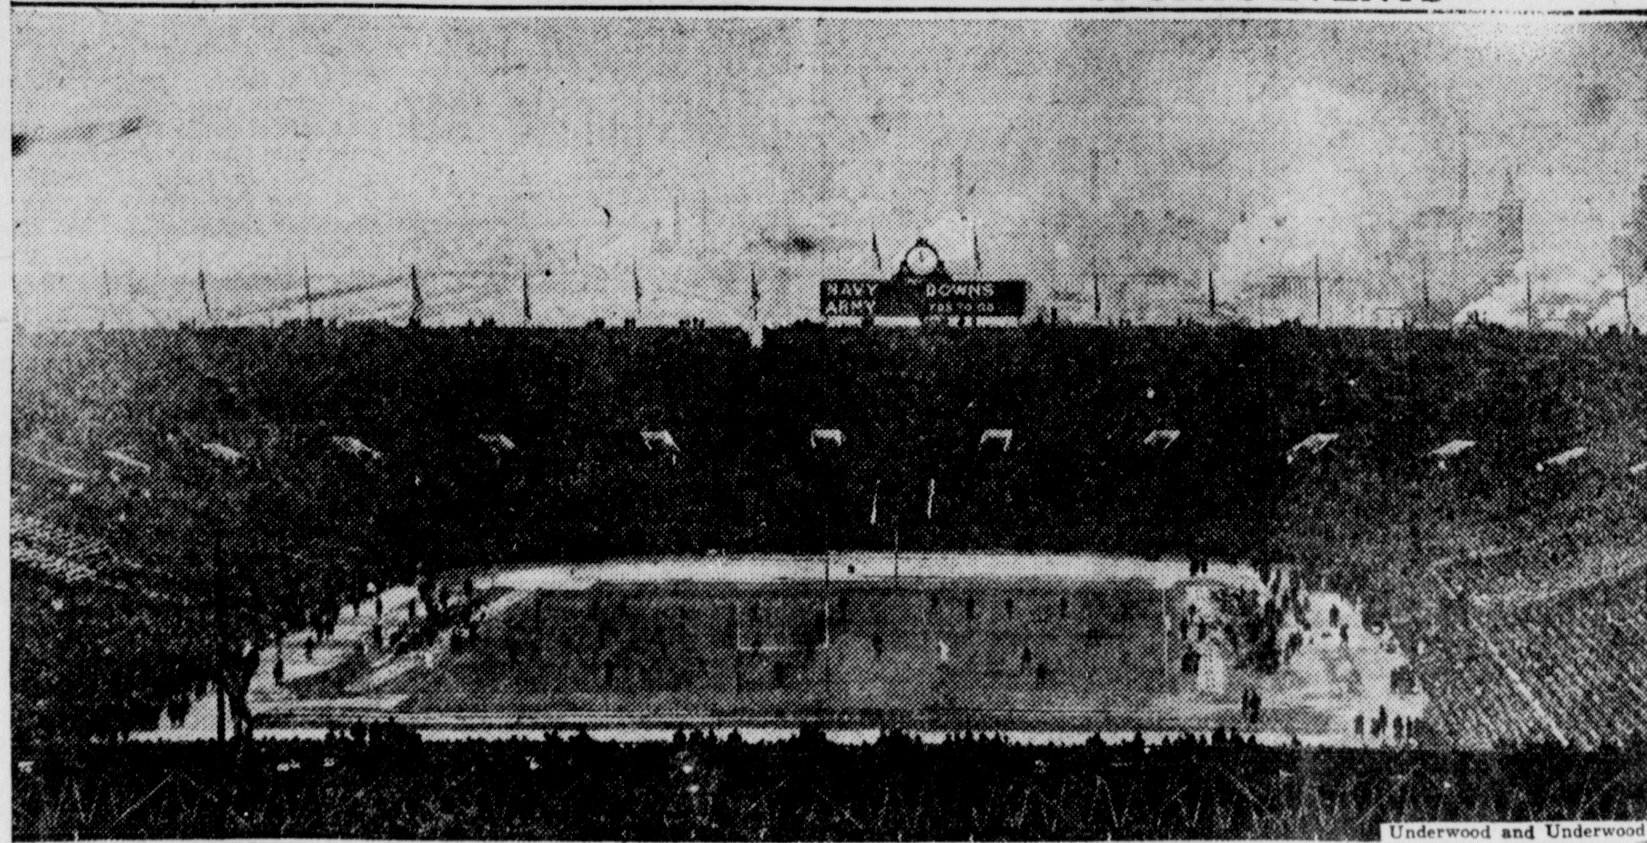

No trace of the auto has been found. The car bore a dealer's license No. 2303.

Police recovered an Essex coach stolen in Dayton early Sunday from C. W. Curlett, 1337 Creighton Ave., Dayton. The car was discovered abandoned and not damaged in the drive way to Woodland Cemetery in this city later in the evening.

It was stolen from its parking place while the owner was attending church services, and the gasoline tank was practically empty when the machine was recovered.

Police believe the thieves after driving the Essex coach to Xenia abandoned it and drove away in the Xenia dealer's machine.

ARMY-NAVY GAME SETS RECORD FOR SPORTS EVENTS

Eighteen Respond To Call For Court Recruits

A galaxy of would-be court stars, eighteen to be exact, answered Coach Victor Kolb's first call for basketball candidates Monday afternoon at Central High School.

With the opening game less than two weeks away, the high school mentor intends to cut his first string squad to twelve as quickly as the more promising material can be picked out.

Central has three regulars back from the 1925-26 championship contest to form the nucleus of this season's team and hopes are running high at the E. Church St. school for a successful season.

Letter men returning this season include Captain Fred Smith, Howell Huston and William Clemans, all regular members of last year's team.

In addition there are a number of promising players who may reveal themselves as first team caliber before many days pass. Rontzong, Hill, Doak, Morton, Marshall and many others are vying for berths on the select five.

Central has three games scheduled before the Christmas holidays and consequently must round out its team within a short space of time.

Initial practice sessions are being devoted to stressing the fundamental rules. Coach Kolb wants his players to feel at home on the floor, keep on the move, each player in the game every minute doing his share in either an offensive or defensive way.

The coach wants to perfect that certain cool, steady attack that side-steps the mad rushes of opponents and quietly threads the ball through the basket without seeming to cause personal contact with guards at all.

cution and released under the former bond of $1,500 pending appeal of the decision to a higher court. Mrs. Hickman pleaded not guilty when arraigned. Her arrest a week ago resulted from the discovery of a quantity of liquor cleverly concealed in the loft of the barn on adjoining property. She denied ownership of the liquor.

PICTURE WILL SHOW WORK OF RED CROSS

Management of the Bijou Theater will show a one-reel film, "The Twister" Tuesday and Wednesday nights, as part of the "drive" of the Greene County Red Cross, the film depicting a tornado, showing the necessity for a relief organization such as the Red Cross.

Xenia citizens are rallying heartily to the support of the Red Cross drive, which will be staged December 2, 3 and 4. Owing to the failure of the Community Chest to make a drive this year, the Red Cross is making its call for members three weeks later than usual in Xenia.

BREAKS A COLD IN A HURRY

"Pape's Cold Compound" is pleasant and affords instant relief.

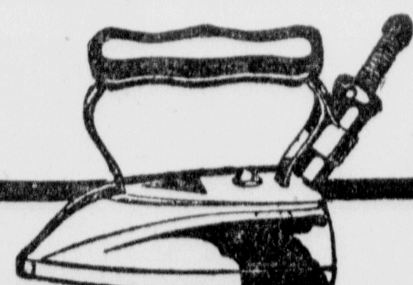

A dose taken every two hours until three doses are taken will end grippe misery and break up a cold. It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness. Don't stay stuffed up! Quit blowing and snuffling! Ease your throbbing head! Nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only thirty-five cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, causes no inconvenience. Be sure you get the genuine. Don't accept something else.

Christmas worries will become Christmas pleasures if you choose the gift that only you can give—your photograph.

WHEELER STUDIO Green Street

'American Beauty' ELECTRIC IRON The best iron made

Buy this iron for what it will do. Consider its sturdy reliability, its freedom from trouble, its never-failing readiness for use, the years of satisfactory service it will render. First cost a trifle more, but cheaper in the end.

Sold by Dealers and Electrical Companies Everywhere.

BREAK WINDOW TO STEAL REVOLVERS

Two valuable revolvers, two hunting knives and at least two holsters constituted the loot obtained by thieves who smashed a pane of glass with a rock and removed the articles from the display window of the O. W. Everhart harness shop, 118 E. Main St., sometime Monday night.

Police Chief M. E. Graham and Patrolman George Spencer, investigating the robbery, found a large rock near the shattered window but no clue to the identity of the thieves.

The show window also contained articles of greater value, including shotguns, which were either overlooked or not wanted.

The owners discovered the robbery early Tuesday morning and made a hasty check of his stock in the window.

NEW TRIAL DENIED; WOMAN GIVEN FINE

Overruling a motion for a new trial, Mayor John W. Prugh fined Mrs. Jennie Hickman, colored, E. Third St., $1,000 and costs upon a recent conviction for possession of liquor Tuesday morning.

She was granted a stay of execution.

How to Treat

Sore Muscles and Stiff Joints

IF YOU are troubled with sore muscles or stiffened joints you can get wonderfully quick relief by using a preparation known as Mexican Mustang Liniment. It penetrates through the surface of the skin, direct to the very bone. Keep your joints limber and flexible by this application. Rub out rheumatic pain in this way. The effect of Mexican Mustang Liniment makes it a very necessary home remedy. Get a bottle today from your druggist and jump around with new tomorrow.

COACH GAUTHIER WILL SPEAK HERE

GAUTHIER AT WORK

George Gauthier, Ohio Wesleyan University coach, of whom "Doc" Welch, famous athlete who played at Wesleyan when "Hurricane" Yost was coaching there, said: "he never sleeps," will address Central High football players at the Ki-Ro dinner at which they will be honor guests Tuesday night.

The cartoonist has doctored the above photograph of Gauthier to show how busy he is planning strategy for his Battling Bishops. He is the first man on the field at practice. Every night he can be found working late at Edwards' gym. Gauthier weighs only 140 pounds and never weighed more than 135 during his playing days although he was a star quarterback at Michigan Aggies.

BUCKEYE BIG FIVE LOSES FIRST GAME TO CINCINNATI OUTFIT

Before a slim crowd the Xenia Buckeye Big Five basketball quintet went down to defeat in its first start of the season Monday night, losing to the Cincinnati Linton Athletic Club 28 to 20 at East High School gymnasium.

Local colored athletes held a one-point margin at the half, leading 13 to 12 but rapidly fell to the rear before a whirlwind passing attack unleashed in the final half.

The contest was rough at all stages and both teams showed glaring deficiencies, missing many easy chances to score. Xenia was completely outclassed and should perhaps have been defeated by a greater margin.

The Xenia five is composed of members of the Dayton Marathons with the exception of Captain Joe "Red" Anderson, this city. Other members of the team include Jackson, Embry, McGregor and Taylor.

Xenia was originally scheduled to play a Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. team on which De Hart Hubbard, famous negro athlete performs and this game may be staged later in the season.

AGED XENIAN DIES TUESDAY MORNING

William C. Stephens, 80, of this city, died of paralysis at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Shaw, near Morrow, O., Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Mr. Stephens made his home with Edwin Stephens at 221 W. Third St., this city, but had been at his daughter's home eight or ten weeks.

The remains were brought to Xenia Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Stephens' death occurred fourteen years ago.

Surviving are the following children: Frank Stephens, Osborn; Leigh Stephens, Dayton; Harry and Edward Stephens, Jr., Xenia, and Mrs. John Shaw, Morrow, O. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

BRADFUTE CONFERS WITH PRESIDENT

O. E. Bradfute, N. King St., former president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, left Monday for Chicago to attend the annual national farm bureau meeting and the International Livestock Show.

Mr. Bradfute just returned from Washington, where he spent last week on business. He was in conference with President Coolidge Friday noon. Their conversation was confined to discussion of the Muscle Shoals problem and the fertilized project in the interests of farming.

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit. Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn. Instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

"Not Possible To Classify"

THE RIGHT KIND OF FOOD

Are you eating the right kind of food? Don't you know that many men and women are digging their graves with their teeth? Are you one of them?

I have been making quite a study of this food question and have found that there are three kinds of food. One kind of food builds up the body, another purifies the body, and the third keeps the body warm. So if you are cold blooded, maybe you are not eating enough food that gives off heat. Have you had any gas heaters, electric warming pads, or coal furnaces for dinner lately? Try one for dessert one of these days.

You who have bad teeth, listen to me. Are you eating anything that will build up your teeth? You can't expect to grow teeth from oatmeal and soda biscuits. You must eat foods that contain plenty of cement. I would suggest that you start eating gravel, egg shells, plaster, etc., three times a day, and that you carry a piece of stucco in your pocket at all times to nibble on. Try these foods a few weeks and you will notice you are getting much heavier.

How are your ears? It is shameful the way the American people are neglecting their ears. There are folks living today who never touch ear corn, chicken ears, fish ears. How can you expect to have ears, if you don't feed them. Try a diet of turkey ears for a month and notice how much better you can listen in on your radio.

Is your hair falling out? Nine cases out of ten this is caused by the person not eating enough hair. How has your hair menu been daily? Better eat some tomorrow.

Musicians should eat drum sticks, violin strings and should have all steaks cut with a musical saw. A fever after-dinner speaker should eat plenty of tacks, so he will be tack full when he talks.

Society people should eat plenty of starchy foods, so they can be stiff and cold. Poor people, like myself, should eat anything they can get hold of, and be glad they are not starving to death.

Phone an ad to 111 tomorrow.

VETERANS CAN HAVE $263,000,000 FOR LOANS DURING 1927

bonus proposition or of the co-related scheme of government life-insurance for veterans. To begin with, now fewer than 2,883,000 men hold bonus certificates which may be deposited with banks as security for loans. Cash on certificates can only be had through loans from banks. The documents cannot be lodged with private persons as collateral. The bonus law recognizes nothing but borrowings from banks or bankers. The purpose is to protect service men from heartless money lenders or usury in any guise. The veterans are even protected against the possible rapacity of banks. None of the latter may charge a bonus borrower a higher rate of interest than 2 per cent above the Federal Reserve bank rate in the district in question.

Borrowing Isn't Urged.

The aggregate face value of all the bonus certificates issued to date is nearly three billion dollars—
the exact total is $2,975,000,000.
George E. Ijams, assistant director of the adjudication division of the veterans' bureau, informs the EFS correspondent that the bureau's influence is all being directed toward advising former soldiers and sailors not to borrow on their bonus certificates except in case of dire emergency. "Through the American Bankers' association, the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Disabled American Veterans' association and other service organizations, emphatic advice on this score is about to go out.

"We are trying to make the men understand," says Col. Ijams, "that it would be to their advantage not to borrow, but to let the loan values accumulate so that if, at a future date, they find themselves in financial straits, they can always secure a quick loan on their adjusted compensation certificates. We are also reminding the veterans that the actual cash available to the individual borrowers at once is small, and that the longer certificate holders refrain from borrowing, the more the cash loan value will increase from year to year, just as the value of life insurance increases if dividends are not taken up."

Colossal as is the amount of money Uncle Sam, by act of congress, has agreed to hand over to the World War fighters, it is a bagatelle compared to the life insurance in force for their benefit. Up to June 30, 1926, "converted insurance" (that is, policies dating from the armistice in 1918) amounted to

"TALKING FOR EFFECT"

Some people can tell a good story and if they can't stick to it, it sticks to them! They can live in a two by four, and talk like a castle-by-the-sea. The only things they have that aren't attached are their collars and cuffs and their davenport! Sometimes they get to believing things themselves, but they're the only ones who do. They put up a bold front with no backing.

Like the woman who dyes her hair, the true colors show up when you get to the roots of the matter. Engaged couples are always putting up a good bluff after marriage they have to climb it. The stories that would be a good salesman if he could only "close." But his mouth and everything else is left open too long. He sells himself and then, like the clerk, he weighs his hand on the scale with the merchandise. Men who throw a good line are often surprised at what they drag in. An extra man is always welcomed and married off as soon as possible. No matter if he has forgotten where he rented his tuxedo, there is always some girl to buy his studs. Women like to be told things which flatter them, it isn't how much a man gives them, but how thick he spreads it. Sugar in the lumps in the thing!

TAKE TH' CAR HOME, JAMES

BOSS - HOW 'BOUT THAT QUARTER I LOANED YOU LAST WEEK?

FOUR WHEELS AND A BAD BREAK

A man tells a girl in the courtship days put him in good trim for the after-marriage line. Many a man who makes a girl think that he can work miracles, can't even work five days a week!

Girls tell even better stories than men when they are after a life partner. All the stories they tell are, before dinner—and for dinner—stories. Most people would live happily ever after if it weren't for the fact that they put their best foot forward and their minds backward. They forget that they are letting themselves in for a lot of explaining when they reach the "Where have you been?" stage. This is the type of person who

There are those who talk solely to make an impression on others, they don't even think when they're alone. It's a good thing that their conscience doesn't prick them because they're so full of hot air that they'd blow up! All of the social climbing is done up a bluff. Any maybe you don't meet a lot of "mounting" goats! When ab unch of persons like this get together the combined effect is a song of praise, only there are a lot of stars singing in the chorus.

If you are going to bluff your way through life it's a good thing to have carfare back. Because when you reach the end of the line you will have to get out and talk!

HONEY LOU

"WHY DON'T YOU CHARGE THEM?" SHE ASKED SUDDENLY.

CHAPTER XXVI

That day was the most wonderful and thrilling day of Honey Lou's life. One lovely thing after another kept happening to her, all day long.

First of all Jack came to see her on his way to the mills. Jack, in his blue overalls, carrying a huge armful of late roses and autumn leaves.

"The florists' shops weren't open, so I brought these to you," he said, when he came into the flat. "They're from our own place—Good morning, Mrs. Huntley."

"Good morning, Jack," Honey Lou's mother answered him, coming into the room. It was the first time she had called him anything but "Mr. Wallack."

Honey Lou was very proud of her, at that moment. She looked so queenly and dignified and proud as she came across the small room and let Jack kiss her on one of her cheeks.

"The Head's coming to see you this afternoon," he told Honey Lou when they were alone. He took Honey Lou and the great bouquet she was holding into his arms, crushing them both. "I told her and Dad about us this morning. Dad was pleased as Punch—and The Head will be, too, when she gets used to the idea."

Then he looked at her and the flowers and tried to say something about the "garden of his heart." Honey Lou laughed at him for being so sentimental. But she loved him for it, just the same, and was touched by it.

"You big awkward man-child, you!" she said to him. She pushed him into a chair and sat on his lap, swinging his feet in their old pink felt slippers that were sizes too large for her.

She rumbled up his hair, and patted his blue jacket where it covered his chest with tender, caressing hands. "I love you so that I don't know whether I'll let you go to work today or not!"

But presently it was time for him to tear himself away, whether he wanted to or not.

"Don't we look like a couple of frights? Me in my old rags, and you in your overalls?" she asked him when they stood at the door of the flat. "And I don't care—I'm that happy! I'd go right down and get married this way if my mother didn't think it disgraceful to be in such a hurry about it—it wouldn't you?" she laughed.

Mrs. Huntley overheard what she said from the bedroom where she was searching for some real lace that she had laid away.

"Honey Lou," she called, when Jack had gone. "I don't think you ought to joke that way about a solemn thing like getting married."

"Solemn?" repeated Honey Lou. "It's not solemn. It's beautiful and wonderful and gay! What's solemn about getting married, I'd like to know?"

"You will know. You'll find out," her mother answered, coming out of the bedroom with her work basket full of yellowed lace. "Time will teach you things, Honey Lou."

But Honey Lou was not listening. Her shining eyes were on the cobwebby rose-point lace.

Her mother shook it out. It was a great square piece, as big as a tablecloth. One of the few family treasures that Mrs. Huntley had saved from the long-ago days of her glory.

"A wedding veil!" Honey Lou cried. In a twinkling she had it in her hands and was throwing it over her head. It swept around her like a cloud of mist.

"Honey Lou! Take it off!" Mrs. Huntley's soft voice was full of alarm. "It's bad luck to try on your wedding veil—Take it off, I say!"

The girl laughed. "Oh, Mother, don't be so silly!" she said, lifting the lace from her head. "How could it bring me bad luck to throw that piece of stuff over my head?—How can you believe in such things?"

Mrs. Huntley pressed her lips together, and carried the lace back into her bedroom.

"I want to show it," Mrs. Wallack when she comes, this afternoon," she said, presently. "I want her to know that even if we are 'nobodies' now, we were 'somebodies' once upon a time!"

At four o'clock Aunt Lucy came over, bringing the afternoon paper, and showing Honey Lou the announcement in it. There it was—the very first paragraph in the society column!

"Mrs. Georgine Moody-Huntley announces the engagement of her daughter, Harriet Louise, to Mr. John Wallack, junior, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wharton Wallack of Summit Street."

Aunt Lucy read it aloud.

"Well," she said, when she had finished, "if must say, Georgine, you married this girl off well. I hope you married just as well with Margaret."

Her tone was doubtful—who could expect a plain, sober girl like Margaret to make the match that a raving beauty could make?

"Margaret will probably marry Stephen Mayhew. He's here all the time," Mrs. Huntley answered comfortably. Now that Honey Lou was out of her reach, she began to have hopes that Steve and Margaret would hit it off as they should.

But there was not a word from Steve, as the days went by. Honey Lou did not notice his absence, so busy was she in shopping and trying on the wonderful white satin dress that Miss Sadler was making for her.

It was the only thing that was being made at home. She and her mother were buying all the clothes that she needed—a plain blue serge street dress, a little evening frock of clear silk, white georgette underthings, and a kimono of pale-blue Japanese silk embroidered with cherry blossoms of pink.

"Mother, where are you getting all the money for these things?" asked Honey Lou one day when she and Mrs. Huntley were choosing a dozen pairs of thin chiffon stockings in all the shades of gray. "You're not breaking into the savings for the house, are you?"

That had been their dream, for years—to have a little house, somewhere, just big enough for the three of them. A little house with a backyard where they could grow vegetables and flowers. A little front porch where they could sit on warm gray-blue summer nights. Neighbors—friends.

Mrs. Huntley only set her lips together firmly, as she always did when she did not want to answer questions.

"I just wonder if you'd better have silver slippers or white satin ones with your wedding dress," she mused, running her hand through a sheer chiffon stocking.

"Mother! Tell me—are you spending the money for the house on these things of mine? Answer me, please!" persisted Honey Lou.

Her mother frowned. "Hush!" she whispered. "The saleswoman will hear you! What if I do spend part of that money on you? It's not much, and you only get married once in a lifetime."

She had been married twice, herself, but she never seemed to remember it when she was making a purchase.

At any rate, the silver slippers were forgotten until the day before the wedding.

Honey Lou was all alone in the flat when she remembered them. It was three o'clock, and she knew her mother would not be home before six. She had gone with Aunt Lucy to pick out the solid silver coffee service that she was going to give Honey Lou for a wedding present.

"We just got to have those slippers," Honey Lou said aloud, and she went into the dining room to see if there was any money in the china cracker jar where her mother sometimes hid bills and small silver.

But there was only a dollar in it. One lone silver dollar!

"Maybe I can find her and Aunt Lucy downtown," Honey Lou thought. "They're sure to be in some jewelry store or other—I'll go have a look-see, anyway."

But a careful search of seven jewelry stores failed to find Mrs. Huntley and Aunt Lucy. It was half past four when Honey Lou made up her mind, hopelessly, that she might as well go home.

She was waiting for a street car, when someone caught her by the arm and whirled her around.

"Hello, bride-to-be!" said the softest, gentlest voice in the world.

And there, smiling at her from under the brim of a gray velvet hat, stood Angela Allen!

She leaned forward and kissed Honey Lou's firm, fresh cheek.

"You look worried," she said.

"I am," Honey Lou confessed, with a laugh. "I'm going to be married tomorrow, and I've forgotten to get any slippers until just now. And I haven't any money. I thought perhaps I could find my mother and my aunt down here somewhere, and get some from them." Her eyes searched the hurrying, jostling crowd.

To hunt for two women in a crowd like that would be worse than hunting needles in a haystack. Especially two women like mother and Aunt Lucy, who ran hither and yon, mad after bargains always.

"I've a charge account right in this store," Angela waved her toward a shop on the other side of the street. "I'll take you in and you can charge anything you want to me, and pay me later."

"Oh, would you let me?" Honey Lou's eyes were appealing. "Honestly, you'd be saving my life, if you would!"

They crossed Nicholson Boulevard to the little shop. It was the smartest one on that street, and it sold nothing but French things—French blouses, French hats, French underthings, French perfumes, sandals from Deauville.

Honey Lou saw the pair of slippers she wanted, the very moment she walked into the shop. They stood on the counter inside the door, and they were white satin trimmed with silver leather.

"I'll take them," she told the saleswoman who tried them on her small, slender feet. "Isn't it a miracle that they fit me?"

They were thirty dollars.

"Why don't you open a charge account here in your own name? In your married name, I mean?" Angela asked her quietly. "then you could pay for them after you were married."

And so the shoes were charged to "MRS. J. W. WALLACK, JR."

LECTURER-AUTHOR TO EXPLAIN MEXICO AT PUBLIC MEETING

Arrangements are being completed for the free public lecture on Mexico to be given by David Goldstein.

DAVID GOLDSTEIN

stein, nationally known lecturer and writer, at St. Bridget School auditorium, under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus.

The lecture is set for 8:15 p. m. Friday, December 3, and is free to the public. The present wide interest in Mexico has prompted the enthusiasm with which Mr. Goldstein's address is awaited. Mr. Goldstein has made a long study of Mexico and knows the situation from all viewpoints—historical, political, economic, social, and religious. He knows the fundamental causes of the present disturbance in Mexico and what Americanism demands of Americans in their attitude toward the Mexican crisis. His lecture is given as a part of the Knights of Columbus Million Dollar Campaign against Bolshevism on this continent.

Mr. Goldstein is a vivid, fearless speaker. He is an author and lecturer whose writings and talks have done much to stem the rising wave of socialism in this country. His first book, "Socialism: the Nation of Fatherless Children," was highly commended by President Roosevelt.

in his Outlook Magazine articles. His second book, "Bolshevism: Its Cure," was one of the first books written against socialism in its Russian guise. It won the highest praise from Cardinal Mercier of Belgium. His third book, "Campaigning for Christ," tells the stirring story of his pioneer lay street preaching between San Francisco and Boston, of eight years' work upon the pavements for Christianity.

Mr. Goldstein believes that the public is not sufficiently aware of the real importance of the present crisis in Mexico. He holds that in Mexico is now being decided to a great extent the future of the governments of this continent. It is this contention that gave rise to the resolution of the Knights of Columbus at their Supreme Convention in Philadelphia in August, where they voted to inaugurate their campaign against the rising tide of Bolshevism.

AUTO COLLISION IS A FAMILY AFFAIR

Silas Scott, aged colored man, 1111 E. Market St., sustained bruises when his horse and wagon and an automobile driven by his son, William Scott, E. Third St., collided at Main and Collier Sts., Monday afternoon at 5:20 o'clock.

The elder Scott was unseated and thrown to the ground but was not seriously hurt. Unaware that his father was driving the vehicle, the son leaped out of the machine to his side before learning the victim was his father.

William Scott was driving east on Main St. and his parent west on Main, when the latter endeavored to make a left-hand turn onto Collier St.

The son was driving slowly and putting on the brake, the car merely skidded on the slippery street into the front wagon wheel and shaft. Neither vehicle was badly damaged.

SICK CHILDREN LOVE "CASCARETS" FOR THE BOWELS

Give "Candy Cathartic" for a bad cold, sour stomach, constipation

Get a 10-cent box now.

Most of the ills of childhood are caused by a sour, disordered stomach, sluggish liver and constipated bowels. They catch cold easily, become cross, listless, irritable, feverish, restless, tongue coated, don't eat or sleep well and need a gentle cleansing of the bowels—but don't try to force a nauseating dose of oil into the little ones already sick stomach—it is cruel, needless and old-fashioned.

Any child will gladly take Cascarets Candy Cathartic which act gently—never gripe or produce the slightest uneasiness—though they cleanse the little one's system, sweeten the stomach and put the liver and bowels in a pure, healthy condition.

Full directions for children and grown-ups in each package.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this gentle, thorough laxative which costs only ten cents a box at any drug store.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad complexion or rimp face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Taken nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

RUMOR FAVORS RETURN OF CAROL

ROUMANIA SPLIT BY NUMEROUS REPORTS REGARDING PRINCE

Queen Marie Arrives In France—King Reported Better

ON THE HUNGARIAN-ROUMANIAN FRONTIER, Nov. 30.—Roumania today is a land where Dame Rumor parades openly as a prince's favorite, with little or no authentic information to say her nay.

Arriving on the frontier, this correspondent found a feverish excitement among all Roumanians, thirsting for news from the capital as well as the greatest interest in information coming from the outside world.

A dozen different rumors and reports were abroad. Conspicuous among these were those that King Ferdinand has been dead since last Saturday night but that the news is being suppressed; also that the Roumanian minister of war, M. Mircescu, is expected to leave Roumania tomorrow "for a trip abroad."

His trip is believed to have a double motive: first, to give Premier Averescu an opportunity to take charge of the Roumanian army as temporary minister of war, to prepare against a possible forthcoming revolution; and, second, to permit M. Mircescu to personally take charge of the Roumanian intelligence service abroad as a guaranty that former Crown Prince Carol will not be able to return to Roumania, as it is suspected he intends to do—perhaps in the returning retinue of Queen Marie, who arrives in Paris today.

The Roumanian newspapers today contained no news concerning King Ferdinand's condition, except for the favorable communiqués issued by the government and which the majority of the populace believes to be untrue.

The government has informed the editors and proprietors of newspapers that confiscation will immediately follow the publication of any item concerning the king's health or the question of succession to the throne, other than the news contained in the official bulletins.

Premier Averescu is reported to be trying to get the Peasants party leaders to forsake their support of Prince Carol's cause and to accept the government's solution of the question of succession to the throne.

STRAND OF ROPE MADE IN XENIA MAY HELP SOLVE MURDER OF MAN FOUND IN RIVER ON NOVEMBER 7

Theory that the strand of rope tied to a stone with which the unidentified body of a red-haired man found in the Scioto River near Columbus November 7 was weighed down, is a product of the Hoover and Allison Co., Xenia, has been adopted by authorities investigating the mysterious death.

The strand of rope is considered unusual, having a blue thread running through it. Investigators, it is said, have definitely established the fact the rope is of the famous "Blue Heart" variety for which the Xenia manufacturing concern is noted.

Efforts are now being made by detectives assigned to the case to learn the names of Columbus distributors of the product with the hope that more information which may lead to solution of the murder can be obtained.

Officials of the company in Xenia admit the possibility their product may be a clue in the case but have not been in communication with Columbus detectives. The company declines to commit itself definitely to the assertion the rope is of the "Blue Heart" make without actually seeing the strand, pointing out the product of at least one other company is similarly identified by a blue thread, which is, however, placed in the rope in a different manner.

It was originally believed the body is that of Ralph Pope, Springfield, on the testimony of Mrs. Annie Riggs, Springfield who has stated positively she is the mother of the murdered man, but detectives are skeptical.

If it is proven conclusively the body is that of another man, it will be exhumed from Miamisburg Cemetery. In the event it is identified as that of Pope from service prints, investigators will continue their efforts to apprehend the murderer along other lines.

PROSECUTOR MOVES TO THWART DELAY OF M'DERMOTT TRIAL

Trial Scheduled To Begin Monday—McClintock Attempts To Block Possible Withdrawal Of Counsel

CANTON, O., Nov. 30.—Prosecutor C. McClintock said this morning that he will take steps today to prevent, if possible, any postponement of Pat McDermott's trial, set for next Monday.

The prosecutor said he had heard persistent rumors to the effect that E. L. Mills, who was engaged as counsel for McDermott, after the latter had pleaded poverty before the court, would withdraw from the case. The prosecutor said he would ask the court to have Mills come in court today to either confirm or deny the rumors. He said he would permit nothing to interfere with the trial of McDermott at the time set. He said every effort has been made, by the defense to secure postponement and he did not purpose to be defeated even by withdrawal of counsel, which he regards as simply a move to get the trial set back.

Dan Pfaff, who, with Ben Nadel, kept McDermott hid while the police of the country were searching for him, was before the sessions of the grand jury yesterday and today Nadel will be brought here from Cleveland to be questioned. It was reported that some of the witnesses yesterday testified that they had recognized McDermott as a man they had seen near the Mellett home the day before the publisher was killed and others are said to have recognized pictures of Nadel as a man seen shadowing Mellett the evening of July 15, at the Molly Stark club, just a few hours before Mellett was killed. ELECTION OF GOULD ENABLES PARTY TO ORGANIZE SENATE

Will Not Help Much
However In Control
Of That Body

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Election of Arthur R. Gould as Republican senator from Maine means that the Republican party will be able to organize the senate of the seventieth congress by the narrow margin of a single vote.

Actually, however, the Republican victory in Maine means very little, if anything, insofar as actual or working control of the next senate is concerned.

The line-up stands today:
Republicans—48. Democrats—47. Farmer-Labor—1.

Actual control, if any, rests more with the Democrats than with the Republicans, despite the figures, for included in the Republican total of forty-eight are fully a dozen senators who as often vote with the Democrats as against them. There are, perhaps, half a dozen who vote oftener against the administration than with it. This is particularly true on any legislation that by any stretch of imagination may be termed "progressive."

DONAHEY WILL ASK SENATE APPROVAL

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 30.—Governor Vic Donahey, it became known today, is expected to ask the Ohio senate this winter to confirm his appointment of either James C. Dugan, Kenton; Robert Ackerman, Gallion; or Attorney Grover C. Maxwell, Columbus, as a member of the state utilities commission representing Ohio railroad employees.

Dugan, now acting secretary of the commission, was in charge of the commission's railroad department for years. Ackerman for many years has been legislative agent for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers. Maxwell, a former railroad employee, formerly was secretary of the commission.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Lewis H. Rothchild, vice president of the Chelsea Exchange Bank, of New York and two of his associates will be placed under arrest today as the prime figures in a gigantic plot to smuggle liquor into the United States.

Assistant United States Attorney Hubert C. Thompson, Deputy Surveyor Thomas P. Finnegan and Customs Agent Owen P. McKenna arrived here from Boston early today with warrants for Rothchild and Harold Smythe, secretary to Rothchild, and James V. Boice, assistant cashier of the Chelsea bank.

Thompson said he would demand immediate extradition of the three to Boston to stand trial with thirty-eight others indicted by the government in the alleged liquor conspiracy.

REVIVAL OF RELIEF QUESTION ASSURED BY NEW FARM PLAN

New McNary-Haugen
Measure To Face
Congress Soon

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—A revival of the farm relief controversy at the coming session of congress was assured today with the drafting of a new McNary-Haugen bill for the stabilization of American agriculture through the creation of a government corporation to export surplus farm products.

Defeated at the last session, after a bitter fight, the new measure will face a hard road to enactment. It will retain the two principal provisions—which would place an equalization fee upon exported products and require the government to finance it at the outset—that caused its rejection by congress last spring.

Its enactment will depend entirely upon the support given it by Southern senators and representatives, following the recent upheaval in the cotton industry.

Most of the provisions of the old bill were re-written into the new document. It will authorize a $200,000,000 appropriation to be used as a revolving fund by the proposed corporation. This fund would be repaid the government through the levying of an equalization fee upon the products benefited. Its export features will apply to cotton, wheat, corn, swine and rice.

The inclusion of rice among the products to be exported was a departure from the old bill as the dropping of livestock products. The latter, however, may be restored if live-stock dealers insist upon it.

There were other changes in the administrative features of the bill, the chief one being to place all control of the proposed corporation in the hands of a board of twelve members. This board would be appointed by the president, one member from each of the federal farm land bank districts. The board would elect its own chairman, who would be vice president of the export corporation.

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1926

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Veterans of the World war will have at their disposal in 1927, in the shape of available bank loans on their bonus certificates, the sum of $262,540,000. Loans may be made on and after January 1. Financial authorities and business leaders throughout the country expect enough ex-service men to take advantage of their privileges to result in a marked effect upon trade of all kinds.

If the veterans borrow on their "adjusted compensation" certificates up to anything like the total amount at their disposal, it would put in circulation about as much ready money as President Coolidge plans to release to taxpayers through credits or refunds. A conservative estimate fixes $200,000,000 as the sum on which our World War fighting men are likely to lay legitimate hands.

CHASE SAYS FALL ATTEMPTED TO CLEAR DEBT WITH ANOTHER LOAN

Day And Night Sessions Ordered To Speed Up Conspiracy Case—Will Take Testimony Every Evening

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Albert B. Fall, ex-secretary of the interior, endeavored unsuccessfully to discharge his $100,000 obligation to E. L. Doherty before the transaction became known to the senate investigating committee. It was testified today by Fall's son-in-law, C. C. Chase.

Chase, the first witness called today in the trial of his father-in-law and Doherty for alleged conspiracy to defraud the government in oil leases, testified that, in November of 1923, Fall endeavored to obtain a loan of $100,000 from Price McKimney, of Cleveland, but without success.

Beginning today, the government's criminal drama will play both night and day sessions. By order of the court, testimony will be taken nightly from eight to ten, in addition to the day hearings.

HUGHES AND BAKER ARE SUGGESTED AS 1928 CANDIDATES

New England Offers
Former Candidate
And Ohioan

By FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE
Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1926

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—From New England, heretofore the suggestion might seem, comes the proposal that Charles E. Hughes be nominated for president by the Republicans two years hence.

From the same quarter issues the thought that the Democrats ought to put up an equally high grade candidate in the person of Newton D. Baker. The patentee of the bi-wave justifier it on the ground that "who would be elected by millions of earnest men and women in both parties alike with gratitude and joy."

There are certain impediments which enshroud the Hughes-Baker idea with difficulties. The former Secretary of State avows, avers and affirms with recurring vigor and vehemence that he is out of politics and in law for keeps. The former secretary of war is handicapped by the fact that Ohio already has two official favorite sons—Gov. Donahey and former Senator Pomerehne.

It has been said that if Newton Baker "had six more inches of height" he would be an irresistible presidential candidate. What he lacks in stature he more than makes up for in brain.

PREJUDICE CHARGE AGAINST JURY WILL BE BASIS OF MOTION

Citizen Alleges Jurors
Freely Discuss Hall-
Mills Case

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 30.—Sensational charges that the Hall-Mills murder trial jury already has made up its mind; that it stands nine for acquittal and three for conviction; and that it has talked freely of its prejudice against the state's case, today caused a furor in Somerville and reports were circulated that Prosecutor Alexander Simpson plans to demand a mistrial. The charges were made by Gilbert Van Doren, owner of the Colonial hotel, where the jury is quartered.

Van Doren, the third largest taxpayer in Somerset County, who has lived here for fifty-six years, wrote a letter containing these charges to Judge Frank L. Cleary, sitting in the case with Justice Charles W. Parker.

Van Doren, seventy-eight years old, and independently wealthy, today admitted it was he who wrote to Judge Cleary, complaining of the actions of the jury. He lives at the hotel.

He was interviewed this morning in his "office" and room on the second floor of the hotel. He is a gray-haired, gray-mustached little man, ruddy-faced and wrinkled.

"I'm sorry I'm dragged into this," he said, "but, now that I'm in it, I'm not going to back down. I thought I could give the information to Judge Cleary without my name getting in the newspapers."

"But what I said in the letter about the jury is right. I've been staying here at the hotel all along and could see and hear what was going on."

"Three of the jurors are for conviction. I can name them. The other nine are for acquittal."

He said the jurors talked the case over loudly and freely at the hotel; that they made no secret of their prejudice against the state's case even before Mrs. Jane Gibson appeared as a witness; that, after she appeared, he repeatedly heard her referred to as "Liar"; that he heard the jurors make such statements as, "Simpson and his Hudson County officers have come to Somerset County to show us how to run things but they won't get away with it."

Van Doren declared he wrote to Judge Cleary because he thought it was his duty to do so as a citizen who did not want a stain cast on the name of Somerset County; that he "wouldn't take the stand for $10,000" but that he will take the stand and tell what he knows if he is requested to do so.

"Why, you couldn't help hearing what the jury was saying around this hotel," Van Doren said. "They leave their doors wide open. There are twenty to twenty-five roomers stopping here all the time."

"I've talked and jollied with the jurors. They have had no compunction in talking with me. Why, I know eleven of the twelve jurors."

"I was joking with one of them the other day. I said: 'Well, soon you'll be locked up for three or four days and you'll have to pay for your own food.' The juror laughed and replied: 'Don't kid yourself; we won't be in there twenty minutes.'"

"If Simpson subpoenas me, I'll go and testify," he said. "And, if he does, I'll give him the name of the juror who sits in here and talks about the case right along."

It is reported that Prosecutor Simpson plans a move for a mistrial either today or tomorrow. If he makes such a motion, he will allege improprieties in connection with the conduct of the jury.

Simpson said today that, for several days, detectives for the prosecution have been obtaining affidavits tending to show that several members of the jury have not been paying proper attention to the evidence and that one of the jurors fell asleep during the testimony of Mrs. Jane Gibson.

It is understood Simpson plans to present the affidavits to the court in support of a motion for a mistrial.

Attorneys for the defense indicated their surprise at the turn of developments. Timothy N. Pfeiffer, of defense counsel, said that, in the event of a mistrial, the defense would plead, at the opening of a new trial, that their clients "have been placed in former jeopardy" and move that the new trial be dismissed.

When Simpson came into the court room this morning he would not discuss his plans regarding a motion for a mistrial. It was learned, however, that his assistants are actively seeking evidence regarding the jury and that one matter being investigated is a report that a Somerville minister called one of the jurors aside the other day and talked to him for five minutes.

KINGS OF NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE EXPLAINED IN STORY

One of World's Greatest Markets Is Least Understood—Expert Tells About Wall St., In Article About High Finance

By FRED R. RIPLEY
Special Financial Writer of EFS and The Daily Gazette

Recent developments in Wall Street, notably in connection with General Motors, have served to draw the attention of the newspaper readers to the New York Stock exchange, which is at the same time one of the world's greatest markets and one of the least understood institutions. To the average person it is a thing of mystery wherein financial giants plot and plan ways in which they may deplete the other fellow's bank roll.

It has its faults, like all human institutions, but the stock exchange is one of the most constructive factors in the world today, for it is the thing which makes possible those great corporations which unified industry, cheapened costs, and put within the reach of almost everyone things that not many years ago were considered luxuries.

WHY IT'S NECESSARY

There are few persons rich enough to finance, individually, a really great corporation. The combining of the money and interests of a great number of people is at its highest stage in our modern corporation.

One is apt to overlook the advantages of this system. Perhaps one of the best examples is the modern railroad. Traveling from New York to Chicago one may use one of three or four different routes. One train takes you all the way. There are no changes to make.

But imagine that same trip if the railroads were individually owned and a person had to travel on lines owned by perhaps a dozen or fifteen individuals in making this same trip. For one man could scarcely own a trunk line from New York to Chicago. He would have to be content with owning merely a section of it. The nation would be more or less a network of short railroads that competed with each other and were highly inefficient as judged by our modern standards.

The stock exchange idea is really the thing which has made the trunk railroad and other large corporations possible. The big corporation is the result of a number of people pooling their money and interests.

ALWAYS IMMEDIATELY USEFUL

Before people will invest their money they must generally be shown two things. First, a chance for fair or better profit, and secondly, the opportunity of getting their money back if they are dissatisfied for any reason. Practically all of our big and small corporations have demonstrated

DRINK WATER TO HELP WASH OUT KIDNEY POISON

IF YOUR BACK HURTS OR YOUR BLADDER BOTHERS YOU, BEGIN TAKING SALTS

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In twenty-four hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much, also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. —Adv.

owner wants his money back he has a market for his ownings. The stock exchange is the backbone of the corporation for it is the thing which provides the money that makes it possible.

In another article, in this paper, I will explain how the New York Stock exchange operates and tell some things about it that the man with money to invest ought to know before he buys stocks or bonds.

TEACHING OF SEX HYGIENE UNDER FIRE

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 30.—The faculty of East High School has split over the question of teaching sex hygiene and several stormy sessions are imminent.

The controversy broke out due to the custom of Prof. Robert Goldbach in taking a mixed class of adolescents to Western Reserve University one day each week where they were shown exhibits and given lectures about social diseases.

Several teachers of the school reported the matter to Principal Daniel Lothman who in turn referred it to Assistant Superintendent of Schools, Charles H. Lake. The latter has told Lothman to settle the dispute.

Then Lothman decided to put

Fletcher's CASTORIA

Why Castoria?

Years ago Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups were the remedies in common use for Infants and Children; Castor Oil so nauseating as to be almost impossible and the others all containing Opium in one form or another, but so disguised as to make them pleasant to the taste, yet really to stupefy the child and give the appearance of relief from pain.

It required years of research to find a purely vegetable combination that would take the place of these disagreeable, unpleasant and vicious remedies that from habit had become almost universal. This was the inception of, and the reason for, the introduction of Fletcher's Castoria, and for over 30 years it has proven its worth, received the praise of Physicians everywhere and become a household word among mothers.

A remedy ESPECIALLY prepared for Infants and Children and no mother would think of giving to her baby a remedy that she would use for herself, without consulting a physician.

To avoid imitations always look for the signature of Dr. H. H. Fletcher. Proven directions on each package. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

Mrs. Whitmer fell when she attempted to light a fire in a grate in her room. The accident occurred the day preceding the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Whitmer.

SMITH ADVERTISING COMPANY TO EXPAND PLANT FACILITIES

Details of an expansion program resulting from a steady increase of business were made known Tuesday by Frank L. Smith and Burch Smith, co-owners of the Smith Advertising Co., 132-134 E. Main St., with the acquisition of property adjoining the concern, purchased from Attorney Marcus Shoup.

The deal consummated Saturday gives the company title to a residence and lot with a frontage of fifty feet and depth of 165 feet. New owners plan to erect a two-story building on the lot connecting with the main plant by archways.

Increased business has resulted in crowded working conditions at the present plant. It is pointed out. In the proposed new building will be placed additional special machinery and equipment now under construction. The press room and part of the main offices may also be transferred to the new structure.

The addition will give the company a 100-foot frontage on E. Main St., extending 165 feet deep. A warehouse may also be eventually constructed in the rear of the property for storage purposes.

The company now employs about thirty-five people and with additional facilities hopes to increase its force of employees to between fifty and sixty.

At present the building now in use is considered of inadequate size. The basement is being used for store room, the first floor for the bindery and press room and the second story given over to a portion of the bindery and composing room, with stock rooms in the rear.

The company was organized fourteen years ago by the present owners and has shown a steady advertising novelties which appear in every state in the United States and many foreign countries.

All machinery used is designed according to special plans enabling the concern to fill practically all applications. The company recently added printed yard sticks to its list of products and ships a car load a month.

SACRIFICE DINNER NOT ESSENTIAL FOR GOLDEN RULE PLANS

It is not entirely essential to serve an orphan or "refugee meal" to carry out the spirit of Golden Rule Sunday, December 5, according to the statement of members of A. C. Turrell W. C. T. U. sponsoring the cause in Xenia.

Members of A. C. Turrell Union suggest that the vital purpose of the day is to obtain funds for the support of 35,000 children the wards of Near East Relief in Greece, Armenia, Palestine and Syria. A touch of sentiment is added to the day by serving a sacrificial meal, the chairman observes, but a generous donation agreed on after the usual Sunday dinner will bring the same comfort and satisfaction to the children. "A charity which extends a hand of help over the sea to aid an alien people is a fitting expression of the world meaning of the Golden Rule and must do much to extend that international good-will on which the peace of the world depends," says an appeal from the committee.

Envelopes for donations for the Near East Relief will be placed in Xenia churches next Sunday and Xenia pastors have consented to give talks in local schools next Thursday, urging observance of "Golden Rule Sunday." The Rev. W. H. Telford, First Presbyterian Church, will talk at Central High School Thursday at 2:45 p. m., and later at the Opportunity School; the Rev. W. N. Shank at Orient Hill at 2:15; the Rev. J. P. Lytle, at Spring Hill, 2:15 p. m.; the Rev. H. B. McElree, McKinley, 2:45; the Rev. A. M. Hutchison and the Rev. Mr. Cromwell, East High, 10:30.

The recent earthquake disasters in Armenia, making thousands of little children shelterless and destroying hundreds of lives, places an additional burden on the shoulders of Near East Relief. It is said.

It is estimated that nearly 5,000,000 people, including President Coolidge and many other rulers, will participate in the observance of Golden Rule Sunday. It is understood a sacrificial dinner will be served at the White House.

BARN AND CONTENTS DESTROYED BY FIRE AT NEW JASPER TUESDAY

A large barn on the farm of Russell Spahr, east of New Jasper, and its contents, including a large quantity of hay, was entirely destroyed by fire Tuesday morning. The flames were discovered by Mr. Spahr at an early hour, but efforts of neighbors to check the blaze proved unsuccessful.

The barn was practically new, being built only two or three years ago.

Besides the several tons of hay, several farm implements in the barn were also destroyed. Cause is not known. The barn was wired but whether or not the electricity caused the fire, has not been determined.

Other buildings near the barn were damaged by the blaze and the volunteer fire fighters confined their efforts to these buildings to save further loss. The Spahr residence is only a short distance from the barn but was only slightly damaged by the heat.

Mr. Spahr had his barn and contents partially covered by insurance.

DISLIKES JAZZ BUT ADMITS POPULARITY ON LYCEUM PROGRAM

Presenting a program full of all varieties of entertaining features, Emory Parrnell, the so-called "one-man band," delighted a Xenia Lyceum Course audience at Central High Monday night with fascinating character make-ups and music.

As a novelty attraction this entertainer may well rank at the head of the list for he easily transforms himself into his various characters by the use of wigs, grease paint and costumes—all applied within full view of his audience.

The musical part of the entertainment was captivating. He plays an accordion and confines himself to classical and old-time selections. In fact he dislikes jazz music, he declared. Music he said strikes a human being at about the solar plexus, the jazz type going to the feet and the better class to the brain. Eighty per cent of the people, however, favor jazz strains of music, he asserted.

He uses the accordion also as an accompaniment to his vocal solos and at the same time plays the drums with his feet.

During his character make-ups, he tells appropriate stories about the kind of person he is delineating and these bits of humor help to make the impersonations all the more interesting.

The fourth number of the course is not scheduled until January 27, 1927 when Arthur Walwyn Evans, the distinguished Welsh orator, appears here.

CHRISTMAS SEALS

During the month between Thanksgiving, Nov. 25, and Christmas, Dec. 25, you will see three carolers singing every day, everywhere. They will greet you as you open your mail, as you walk past store windows, or open your newspaper. For the carolers are painted on the 1926 Christmas Seals.

They stand against the deep blue of a night sky, lighter towards the top because of the distant glow of the moon—or a star; deepening into shadows at the horizon.

For garb, they wear scarlet cowls and tights and bright yellow jerkins. This same costume minstrels donned forgotten years ago as they sang their songs before the roaring, blazing fires of oak-raftered halls, during the holiday season.

The caroler on the left touches the strings of a lute; the one on the right sounds the clear notes of a trumpet; and between them a third holds a snow-white shield bearing the doublebarred cross, world-wide emblem of the tuberculosis associations.

"Minstrel" has been a magic word since the dim beginnings of the middle ages. It was derived from an old Latin noun, "minister," which means "one who serves." Through century after century these singers took their service of joy and help from one grim castle to another, asking no pay except the gifts of those who wished to join with them in carrying messages of happiness.

In just such a spirit have these twentieth century minstrels started forth on their pilgrimage. They will take their message of health and Christmas cheer from state to state, city to city, into homes all over the land. And they ask no fee at all except that willingly given by those who receive them, according as the song they sing may relax the strings of heart and purse.

HIS EPITAPH

It is a singular circumstance that Senator Lafayette Young of Des Moines and Uncle Joe Cannon of Danville should die within a week.

Two ties which strongly bound the present with the past are broken.

Lafayette Young was typical of that Americanism which built an empire, and in his mid-west domain, he was a powerful factor in empire building. He could do things with his hands while he planned with his head. He was the "print-shop" product in journalism, graduate of the stalwart old school of editorship which could set its own type, operate its own machinery, think its own thoughts—and which asked no favors of anyone.

He had a philosophy about life and its responsibilities which accounted for his place of prominence in the development of the great West.

"When I die," he was quoted as having said, "I want this to be my epitaph: 'He did what was not before him.'"

The thought recommends itself to the younger generation, rather impatient in its demand for a full helping of the modern privileges made possible under the constructive pioneering of men like Lafayette Young. He took life as he found it. He met its responsibilities, climbed its obstacles, claimed no exemptions from its difficulties, uttered no complaints at its exactions, and, citizen, editor, statesman, he helped fill life with privilege for those who came after him.

Peace seems to be that intangible something that is always being seen in the Balkans, but never closely approached.

Youth must be served and the pity is, bullets, cells and electric chairs are appropriate service for so many.

Queen Marie says that exercise does much toward keeping her in trim. Well, she has gotten a lot of it in the past several days.

HUMAN NATURE
On the half shell

A professor at Johns Hopkins after experimenting for two years has discovered that "high frequency sound vibrations" are capable of destroying life, and cutting down the number of red blood corpuscles.

"High frequency sound vibrations," is the scientific way of describing what you and I would call "noise."

The object of the experiment was to find out how much noise would kill a minnow and bring a well-fed mouse down to the point where it resembled a tenement house geranium.

In order to accomplish this, the Doc says, he was forced to generate a "frequency of 300,000 cycles a second."

Through a clerical error he neglected to state just what he means by a "frequency of cycles."

Scientific men are often careless in this respect. They sprinkle their reports of experiment with the slang of the laboratory, which place the average reader at a distinct disadvantage.

Nothing contributes more to the success of a scientist's meaning than knowing what he is talking about.

Getting back to the report, we learn that the noise produced by the "frequency of 300,000 cycles," finally caused the minnow to cash in its chips, and sent the mouse

WHAT'S IT ALL ABOUT?

It cost the Doc $6,000 to render the minnow null and void, and $45,000 to get it began to regret that Columbus had ever discovered America.

I have never been a Cal Coolidge in the matter of passing round the justly celebrated currency of our fair land, and far be it from me to make any attempt to crab the Doc's expense bill; but spreading 6,000 bucks to kill a minnow and an additional 45,000 berries to reduce a mouse to hysteria, does seem a trifle excessive. I don't know much about minnows, but I am slightly acquainted with the habits, customs and style of feed of the average mouse. A mouse is perpetually on the verge of emotional insanity. Under normal circumstances its erratic and jumpy. The slightest noise precipitates a brain storm.

It may be that the Doc, unfortunately, was called upon to experiment with a strong minded and exceptionally innervated mouse that refused to start at the last hint of vibration. It must have been something like that, for he, himself, tells us, it took two years and 45,000 beans before the mouse broke down and sobbed like a child.

Nevertheless, I maintain the job

could have been done cheaper and quicker. The Doc could have packed his mouse trap, aquarium and sound ruler and journeyed to New York, walking around a day or two with a pet in each hand to the accompaniment of the sound of clanging ambulance gongs, the grinding of brakes, the clatter of flat-wheeled trolleys, the backfire of auto trucks, the rumble of elevated trains, the roar of subway cars through sidewalk gratings, the treble trill of traffic cops' whistles and the daily duet of the riveter's machine and the gangster's gun.

At the end of that time the Doc could have climbed aboard a train headed for Baltimore, with the minnow and the mouse in the baggage coach ahead, and his only expense would have been his fare there and back.

ROUMANIA SUBJECT OF TALK BY XENIAN

Dr. Austin M. Patterson, Xenia, internationally known chemical authority, discussed Rumanian politics in an address before the Miami Two-Parent-Teachers' Association at Yellow Springs Monday night.

Dr. Patterson spent some time abroad and in Rumania last June attending a conference of the International Chemist Union at Bucharest as representative of the United States.

During the meeting in the central school building a small collection of Rumanian needlework and lace in addition to some of the amber cut in Bucharest was on exhibit.

The Theatre

As it does to all those whom Death has visited, the "New Yorker" has come forth with some "mildly derisive" anecdotes about the late James K. Hackett, drawing him as a figure of fun.

"It is quite true that when Hackett was encoined recently at the Moure in Paris," the "New Yorker" goes on to say, "he noted a gratifying reference to himself in 'The Billboard,' and immediately deciding that so intelligently edited a magazine must come to him regularly, he instructed his secretary to see that his subscription address should be 'James K. Hackett, Chevrolet, announced last week that Senator Meller would not appear in Columbus, the Arts Association attempted to secure a later date. This was unsuccessful in view of the announcement by her manager that her entire American tour, including the West and South, has been abandoned."

"Raquel Meller seems to have stored up within her self an infinite number of personalities, which she reveals, one by one, according to her program," says the theater critic of "Time." "Only one quality do all these personalities possess in common—a femininity that is altogether bewitching. An effort to analyze her art is like breaking up butterfly wings with a cold chisel."

Keeping HEALTHY

DEADLY POISON THAT AUTO ENGINES
CONSTANTLY MANUFACTURE

It was a good plan for the American Public Health association, at its recent meeting, to take up as one of its subjects of discussion the great prevalence of poisoning from carbon monoxide, for it prevails wherever illuminating gas is burned or internal combustion engines are used.

Dr. Mayers of the bureau of industrial hygiene of the New York state department of labor stated at this meeting that in more than three-fourths of the public garages inspected in New York City there was evidence of the presence of carbon monoxide and that in more than half of them it was present beyond the danger limit.

This doctor also made the rather startling statement that in nearly three-fourths of the workers in these garages was there evidence of carbon monoxide in the blood, and in some cases there were decided evidences of poisoning.

Workers in steam laundries who made use of gas-heated ironing machines were also found to be more or less affected by this gas. If a careful survey were made throughout the country it would doubtless be found that in a great many industries in which gas is habitually used there are present an astonishing number of sufferers from carbon monoxide poisoning.

In how many garages, public and private, is the utmost carelessness shown in regard to ventilation and the proper liberation of carbon monoxide fumes? This is evidenced by the considerable number of fatalities from this cause which are reported in the newspapers, while the number which must occur from a similar cause and which are not publicly reported must be even larger.

There is, therefore, a very great urgency that this subject be taken up and so handled that this great danger may be eliminated.

Everybody uses automobiles, many use illuminating gas for heating, cooking, lighting, etc. What is the sense in exposing these myriads of people to a danger which it is up to the sellers of gas and gas machines to eliminate?

There is no industry in which the profits are steeper and few in which they are more generous than the gas industry and the internal combustion industry. Why don't they go to work then and at any cost get rid of this menace to human life?

I must confess to a great admiration for engineers. Taking them as a group they seem to contain fewer fourflushers than almost any other educated class.

A fourflusher could gain nothing by studying engineering. He would have to work hard and know what he is about or be found out. Even if he succeeded in fooling the public, he probably wouldn't make much money for engineering rewards are surprisingly small on the average. This is partly because the engineer does his work before the returns begin to come. He builds, say, a big manufacturing plant—builds it before the concern is making much money. When the returns do come, the big salary probably goes to the sales manager.

During the world war, intelligence tests given to thousands of U. S. army officers of all classes, by the psychological division of the medical corps showed that engineers had far more native intelligence than any other group of officers. Doctors, dentists and veterinarians ranked at the bottom of the list while engineers were not only at the top but far above even the next group below.

Nevertheless, in spite of their evident intelligence, engineers are imposed upon in their education. I had dinner last night with a famous engineer and asked him what he considered the best engineering school. To my astonishment he replied:

"The engineering course in any good Y. M. C. A. There they don't let students lose track of what it is all about. Engineering is nothing but the application of four or five fundamentals—such as the law of falling bodies and the principle of the lever. The main thing is to use common sense in applying these principles. A knowledge of mathematics is necessary, but one doesn't need nearly so much of it as the student is led to believe. He is too often taught so much mathematics and theory that he becomes sidetracked and forgets how to apply what he does know."

That is only one man's opinion and I give it for what it is worth. But the point is that if the most intelligent group among educated classes are befuddled by the wrong kind of education, what must have happened to the rest of us?

Educators seem ever to prefer to give what is complicated and difficult rather than merely that which is essential. This is because everybody likes to make his own job harder than it is. Doesn't the cornet player in a country band always make more wry faces than he needs to?

You may have studied subjects or read books that the neighbors know not of. But unless you have gained by such knowledge, the joke isn't on your neighbors so much as on you—for you have wasted your time.

Engineering is nothing but the application of four or five fundamentals—such as the law of falling bodies and the principle of the lever. The main thing is to use common sense in applying these principles. A knowledge of mathematics is necessary, but one doesn't need nearly so much of it as the

That is only one man's opinion and I give it for what it is worth. But the point is that if the most intelligent group among educated classes are befuddled by the wrong kind of education, what must have happened to the rest of us?

THE RIGHT KIND OF FOOD

Are you eating the right kind of food? Don't you know that many men and women are digging their graves with their teeth? Are you one of them?

I have been making quite a study of this food question and have found that there are three kinds of food. One kind of food builds up the body, another purifies the body, and the third keeps the body warm. So if you are cold blooded, maybe you are not eating enough food that gives off heat. Have you had any gas heaters, electric warming pads, or coal furnaces for dinner lately? Try one for dessert out of these days.

You who have bad teeth, listen to me. Are you eating anything that will build up your teeth? You can't expect to grow teeth from oatmeal and soda biscuits. You must eat foods that contain plenty of cement. I would suggest that you start eating gravel, egg shells, plaster, etc., three times a day, and that you carry a piece of stucco in your pocket at all times to nibble on. Try these foods a few weeks and you will notice you are getting much heavier.

How are your ears? It is shameful the way the American people are neglecting their ears. There are folks living today who never touch ear corn, chicken ears, fish ears. How can you expect to have ears, if you don't feed them. Try a diet of turkey ears for a month and notice how much better you can listen in on your radio.

Is your hair falling out? Nine cases out of ten this is caused by the person not eating enough. Here, how has your hair menu been daily? Better eat some tomorrow.

Musicians should eat drum sticks, violin strings and should have all steaks cut with a musical saw. A clever after-dinner speaker should eat plenty of tacks, so he will be tack full when he talks.

Society people should eat plenty of starchy foods, so they can be stiff and cold. Poor people, like myself, should eat anything they can get hold of, and be glad they are not starving to death.

Phone an ad to 111 tomorrow.

bonus proposition or of the co-related scheme of government life insurance for veterans. To begin with, now fewer than 2,883,000 men hold bonus certificates which may be deposited with banks as security for loans. Cash on certificates can only be had through loans from banks. The documents cannot be lodged with private persons as collateral. The bonus law recognizes nothing but borrowings from banks or bankers. The purpose is to protect service men from heartless money lenders or usury in any guise. The veterans are even protected against the possible rapacity of banks. None of the latter may charge a bonus borrower a higher rate of interest than 2 per cent above the Federal Reserve bank rate in the district in question.

Borrowing Isn't Urged.

The aggregate face value of all the bonus certificates issued to date is nearly three billion dollars—the exact total is $2,975,000,000. George E. Hams, assistant director of the adjudication division of the veterans' bureau, informs the EFS correspondent that the bureau's influence is all being directed toward advising former soldiers and sailors not to borrow on their bonus certificates except in case of dire emergency. Through the American Bankers' association, the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Disabled American Veterans' association and other service organizations, emphatic advice on this score is about to go out.

"We are trying to make the men understand," says Col. Hams, "that it would be to their advantage not to borrow, but to let the loan value accumulate so that if, at a future date, they find themselves in financial straits, they can always secure a quick loan on their adjusted compensation certificates. We are also reminding the veterans that the actual cash available to individual borrowers at once is small, and that the longer certificate holders refrain from borrowing, the more the cash loan value will increase from year to year, just as the value of life insurance increases if dividends are not taken up."

Colossal as is the amount of money Uncle Sam, by act of congress, has agreed to hand over to the World War fighters, it is a bagatelle compared to the life insurance in force for their benefit. Up to June 30, 1926, "converted insurance" (that is, policies dating from the armistice in 1918) amounted to

Some people can tell a good story and if they can't stick to it, it sticks to them! They can live in a two by four, and talk like a castle-by-the-sea. The only things they have that aren't attached are their collars and cuffs and their davenport! Sometimes they get to believing things themselves, but they're the only ones who do. They put up a bold front with no backing.

Like the woman who dyes her hair, the true colors show up when you get to the roots of the matter. Engaged couples are always putting up a good bluff after marriage they have to climb it. The stories that would be a good salesman if he could only "close." But his mouth and everything else is left open too long. He sells himself and then, like the clerk, he weighs his hand on the scale with the merchandise. Men who throw a good line are often surprised at what they drag in. An extra man is always welcomed and married off as soon as possible. No matter if he has forgotten where he rented his tuxedo, there is always some girl to buy his studs. Women like to be told things which flatter them, it isn't how much a man gives them, but how thick he spreads it. Sugar in the lumps in the thing!

HONEY LOU

by Beatrice Burton
author of "LOVE BOUND" and "HER MAN" ETC.

"WHY DON'T YOU CHARGE THEM?" SHE ASKED SUDDENLY.

CHAPTER XXVI

That day was the most wonderful and thrilling day of Honey Lou's life. One lovely thing after another kept happening to her, all day long.

First of all Jack came to see her on his way to the mills. Jack, in his blue overalls, carrying a huge armful of late roses and autumn leaves.

"The florists' shops weren't open, so I brought these to you," he said, when he came into the flat. "They're from our own place—Good morning, Mrs. Huntley."

"Good morning, Jack," Honey Lou's mother answered him, coming into the flat about us this morning. "Mr. Wallack."

Honey Lou was very proud of her, at that moment. She looked so queenly and dignified and proud as she came across the small room and let Jack kiss her on one of her cheeks.

"The Head's coming to see you this afternoon," he told Honey Lou when they were alone. He took Honey Lou and the great bouquet she was holding into his arms, crushing them both.

"Dad and Dad about us this morning. Dad was pleased as Punch—and the Head will be, too, when she gets used to the idea."

Then he looked at her and the flowers and tried to say something about the "garden of his heart."

Honey Lou laughed at him for being so sentimental. But she loved him for it, just the same, and was touched by it.

"You big awkward man-thing, you!" she said to him. She pushed him into a chair and sat on his lap, swinging his feet in their old pink felt slippers that were sizes too large for her.

She ruffled up his hair, and patted his blue jumper where it covered his chest with tender, caressing hands. "I love you so that I don't know whether I'll let him go to work today or not!"

But presently it was time for him to tear himself away, whether he wanted to or not.

"Don't we look like a couple of frights? Me in my old rags, and you in your overalls!" she asked him when they stood at the door of the flat. "And I don't care—I'm that happy! I'd go right down and get married this way if my mother didn't think it disgraceful to be in such a hurry about it—wouldn't you?" she laughed.

Mrs. Huntley overheard what she said from the bedroom where

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are effective, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cured with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards speaks of years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

That Baby You've Longed For

MRS. BURTON ADVISES WOMEN ON MOTHERHOOD AND COMPANIONSHIP

"For several years I was denied the blessing of motherhood," writes Mrs. Margaret Burton of Kansas City. "I was terribly nervous and subject to periods of terrible suffering and melancholia. Now I am the proud mother of a beautiful little daughter and a true companion and inspiration to my husband. I believe hundreds of other women would like to know the secret of my happiness and I will gladly reveal it to any married woman who will write me." Mrs. Burton offers her advice entirely without charge. She has nothing to sell. Letters should be addressed to Mrs. Margaret Burton, 2626 Massachusetts, Kansas City, Mo. Correspondence will be strictly confidential.

she was searching for some real lace that she had laid away.

"Honey Lou," she called, when Jack had gone, "I don't think you ought to joke that way about a solemn thing like getting married."

"Solemn?" repeated Honey Lou. "It's not solemn. It's beautiful and wonderful and gay! What's solemn about getting married, I'd like to know?"

"You will know. You'll find out," her mother answered, coming out of the bedroom with her worn hands full of yellowed lace. "Time will teach you things, Honey Lou."

But Honey Lou was not listening. Her shining eyes were on the cobwebby rose-point lace.

Her mother shook it out. It was a great square piece, as big as a tablecloth. One of the few family treasures that Mrs. Huntley had saved from the long-ago days of her glory.

"A wedding veil!" Honey Lou cried. In a twinkling she had it in her hands and was throwing it over her head. It swept around her like a cloud of mist.

"Honey Lou! Take it off!" Mrs. Huntley's soft voice was full of alarm. "It's bad luck to try on your wedding veil!—Take it off, I say!"

The girl laughed. "Oh, Mother, don't be so silly!" she said, lifting the lace from her head. "How could it bring me bad luck to throw that piece of stuff over my head?—How can you believe in such things?"

Honey Lou pressed her lips together, and carried the lace back into her bedroom.

"I want to show it to Mrs. Wallack when she comes, this afternoon," she said, presently. "I want her to know that even if we are 'nobodies' now we were 'somebodies' once upon a time!"

At four o'clock Aunt Lucy came over, bringing the afternoon paper with her to show Honey Lou the announcement in it. There it was—the very first paragraph in the society column!

"Mrs. Georgine Moody-Huntley announces the engagement of her daughter, Harriet Louise, to Mr. John Wallack, junior, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wharton Wallack of Summit Street."

Mrs. Huntley overheard what she said from the bedroom where she was searching for some real lace that she had laid away.

"Honey Lou," she called, when Jack had gone, "I don't think you ought to joke that way about a solemn thing like getting married."

"Solemn?" repeated Honey Lou. "It's not solemn. It's beautiful and wonderful and gay! What's solemn about getting married, I'd like to know?"

"You will know. You'll find out," her mother answered, coming out of the bedroom with her worn hands full of yellowed lace. "Time will teach you things, Honey Lou."

But Honey Lou was not listening. Her shining eyes were on the cobwebby rose-point lace.

Aunt Lucy read it aloud. "Well," she said, when she had finished, "I must say, Georgine, you married this girl off well. I hope you married just as well with Margaret."

Her tone was doubtful—who could expect a plain, sober girl like Margaret to make the match that a raving beauty could make? "Margaret will probably marry Stephen Mayhew. He's here all the time," Mrs. Huntley answered comfortably. Now that Honey Lou was out of her reach, she began to have hopes that Steve and Margaret would hit it off as they should.

But there was not a word from Steve, as the days went by. Honey Lou did not notice his absence, so busy was she in shopping and trying on the wonderful white satin dress that Miss Sadler was making for her.

It was the only thing that was being made at home. She and her mother were buying the clothes that she needed—a plain blue serge street dress, a little evening frock of clear red silk, white georgette underthings, and a kimono of pale-blue Japanese silk embroidered with cherry blossoms of pink.

"Mother, where are you getting all the money for these things?" asked Honey Lou one day when she and Mrs. Huntley were choosing a dozen pairs of thin chiffon stockings in all the shades of gray. "You're not breaking into the savings for the house, are you?"

"That had been their dream, for years—to have a little house, somewhere, just big enough for the three of them. A little house with a backyard where they could grow vegetables and flowers."

Mrs. Huntley only set her lips together firmly, as she always did when she did not want to answer questions.

"I just wonder if you'd better have silver slippers or white satin ones with your wedding dress," she mused, running her hand through a sheer chiffon stocking. "Mother! Tell me—are you spending the money for the house on these things of mine? Answer me, please!" persisted Honey Lou.

Her mother frowned. "Hush!" she whispered. "The saleswomen will hear you! What if I do spend part of that money on you? It's not much, and you only get married once in a lifetime."

She had been married twice, herself, but she never seemed to remember it when she was making a purchase.

At any rate, the silver slippers were forgotten until the day before the wedding.

Honey Lou was all alone in the flat when she remembered them. It was three o'clock, and she knew her mother would not be home before six. She had gone with Aunt Lucy to pick out the solid silver coffee service that she was going to give Honey Lou for a wedding present.

"Just got to have those slippers," Honey Lou said aloud, and she went into the dining room to see if there was any money in the china cracker jar where her mother sometimes hid bills and small silver.

But there was only a dollar in it. One lone silver dollar!

"Maybe I can find her and Aunt Lucy downtown," Honey Lou thought. "They're sure to be in some jewelry store or other—I'll go have a look-see, anyway."

But a careful search of seven jewelry stores failed to find Mrs. Huntley and Aunt Lucy. It was half past four when Honey Lou made up her mind, hopelessly, that she might as well go home.

She was waiting for a street car, when someone caught her by the arm and whirled her around.

"Hello, bride-to-be!" said the softest, gentlest voice in the world.

And there, smiling at her from under the brim of a gray velvet hat, stood Angela Allen!

She leaned forward and kissed Honey Lou's firm, fresh cheek. "You look worried," she said. "I am," Honey Lou confessed, with a laugh. "I'm going to be married tomorrow, and I've forgotten to get any slippers until just now. And I haven't any money. I thought perhaps I could find my mother and my aunt down here somewhere, and get some from them—"

Her eyes searched the hurrying, jostling crowd.

"To hunt for two women in a crowd like that would be worse than hunting needles in a haystack. Especially two women like mother and Aunt Lucy, who ran hither and yon, mad after bargains always."

"I've a charge account right in this store," Angela waved her hand toward a shop on the other side of the street. "I'll take you in and you can charge anything you want to me, and pay me later."

They crossed Nicholson Boulevard to the little shop. It was the smartest one on the street, and it sold nothing but French things—French blouses, French hats, French underthings, French perfumes, sandals from Deauville.

Honey Lou saw the pair of slippers she wanted, the very moment she walked into the shop. They stood on the counter inside the door, and they were white satin trimmed with silver leather.

"I'll take them," she told the saleswoman who tried them on her small, slender feet. "Isn't it a miracle that they fit me?"

They were thirty dollars.

"Why don't you open a charge account here in your own name?" In your married name, I mean!

Angela asked her quietly, "then you could pay for them after you were married."

Read of the other purchase Honey Lou makes that day in tomorrow's chapter.

Poor Rich Girl

L'Avyve Marie de Bourbon, of Los Angeles, has gone to work to support this string of pearls willed to her on condition they not be sold. Storage, insurance and taxes on them total $940 a year.

Seven or eight years old, three cents in the hollow of his tiny hand—and courage. Those are the chief features of a picture that appeared, a few days since, in front of one of our tellers' windows.

Straight past gum and candy counters his courage had carried him, and with the pennies earned by selling papers, he wanted to open a savings account—"to get enough to buy Mother a present."

His aim was $20, and when helped a little to make the start, he pledged his honor as a gentleman not to draw it out until he had reached the goal.

Have you this kind of courage, and are you working toward a goal as is this little boy—and for as good a purpose? We are helping thousands now, and will assist you.

LECTURER-AUTHOR TO EXPLAIN MEXICO AT PUBLIC MEETING

Arrangements are being completed for the free public lecture on Mexico to be given by David Goldstein.

David Goldstein, a nationally known lecturer and writer, at St. Bridget School auditorium under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus.

The lecture is set for 8:15 p. m. Friday, December 3, and is free to the public. The present wide interest in Mexico has prompted the enthusiasm with which Mr. Goldstein's address is awaited.

Mr. Goldstein has made a long study of Mexico and knows the situation from all viewpoints—historical, political, economic, social, and religious. He knows the fundamental causes of the present disturbance in Mexico and what Americanism demands of Americans in their attitude toward the Mexican crisis.

His lecture is given as a part of the Knights of Columbus Million Dollar Campaign against Bolshevism on this continent.

Mr. Goldstein is a vivid, fearless speaker. He is an author and lecturer whose writings and talks have done much to stem the rising wave of socialism in this country. His first book, "Socialism: the Nation of Fatherless Children," was highly commended by President Roosevelt.

In his Outlook Magazine articles. His second book, "Bolshevism: Its Cure," was one of the first books written against socialism in its Russian guise. It won the highest praise from Cardinal Mercier of Belgium.

His third book, "Campaigning for Christ," tells the stirring story of his pioneer lay street preaching between San Francisco and Boston, of eight years' work upon the pavements for Christianity.

Mr. Goldstein believes that the public is not sufficiently aware of the real importance of the present crisis in Mexico. He holds that in Mexico is now being decided to a great extent the future of the governments of this continent. It is this contention that gave rise to the resolution of the Knights of Columbus at their Supreme Convention in Philadelphia in August, where they voted to inaugurate their campaign against the rising tide of Bolshevism.
